WEDDED BLISS FOR 70 YEARS

Grand Old Couple Mark Anniversary Saturday

By RON BAIRD

William and Elizabeth Kirkpatrick (3369 Quadra) will celebrate a forthcoming wedding anniversary with a bit of advice for newlyweds.

It's this: "Take the rough with the smooth and share everything fifty-fifty."

And they should know. Saturday marks their 70th anniversary of proving that two can live as cheaply as one.

Bird-bright, the Kirkpatricks (Bill is 93 next July 23 and Elizabeth 92 April 5) have taken all the marital bumps in their stride since the day in 1882 they said "I do" in Clabby, Ireland.

English-born Elizabeth Kirkpatrick met her future husband shortly after her father moved the family to Ireland.

She started teaching school there but Bill turned out to be her best extra-curricular activity. They were married and moved to Canada in 1910, eventually setting up house in Prince Rupert, where Elizabeth became one of the first women aldermen in Canada's history—she held the post two years, at the same time keeping busy with other community activities.

Bill was with the old Grand Trunk Pacific Railway but moved in with the Canadian customs department from which he retired in 1930. They've lived in this city ever since.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick believes in "young marriages" and Mr. K. thinks wedlock is helped by living a life that is "smokeless and drinkless."

A life-long member of the Odd-fellows, he can also count membership in the St. John Ambulance Corps for a period of 63 years.

During the Boer War, he was approached "seven times" to volunteer for duty as a corps member but Elizabeth put her foot down.

"She wouldn't let me go," he said.

Today, Elizabeth is glad she put her foot down.

As for marriage, Bill says: "It's a fifty-fifty proposition."

Teen-Age Hoax 'Artist' Off To Big TV Show

VANCOUVER, B.C. (BUP)—The teen-ager who upset the paint pots of Canadian art by passing off a phoney abstract flies to New York tonight to appear in a television show.

Bob Leases, 17-year-old shipping clerk employed in the engraving department of The Vancouver Sun became an international "art" discovery overnight when his "abstract" entitled "Melancholia in a Swamp" received flattering constructive criticism from the curator of the Toronto Art Gallery.

"Melancholia in a Swamp" is nothing more than a piece of cardboard which staff artists in the newspaper engraving plant used to clean their brushes and spray guns. It's a mess of red, purple, blue, black and white paint blobs and lines.

Leases "touched it up a bit with a spray gun," framed it, signed his name and gave it a title. Then he packed it off to the unsuspecting Toronto Art Gallery with a request for "some constructive criticism."

The reply the youth got touched off a "tempest in a paint pot" of the abstractionist school.

The Vancouver Art Gallery indignantly rejected a request to hang the alleged work of art on its walls.

Leases leaves Vancouver by air tonight on an expense-paid trip to New York where he will appear on the Friday night CBS-TV show "We the People."

Bodies Of Two Men Found

VANCOUVER, Feb. 13 (CP)—Police today launched an investigation into the discovery of two partly decomposed bodies in an auto court cabin here.

Martin Lepine, 54, was found lying fully clothed on one bed. Paul Rousseau, 62, was lying naked in another bed. Lepine's mother, Mrs. P. Lepine, lives at St. Louis, Sask. Rousseau has a son living in Regina.

The gas heater in the cabin was found turned on full but there was no flame. There was a strong smell of gas, although two windows were open.

The bodies were found Tuesday by Joseph McIntyre, auto court proprietor. He told police the two men checked into the cabin Feb. 4.

Murder Mars Cricket Match In Australia

SYDNEY, Australia, Feb. 13 (AP)—A young migrant from Lebanon, armed with a military rifle, ran amok at an Adelaide cricket match today, killing one player with a shot through the heart and wounding another.

Police later arrested the 24-year-old man in a field behind the cricket pitch and disarmed him.

In the middle of the game, player Donald Reed, 22, yelled and fell bleeding with a bullet wound through his left arm. Four more shots were fired in quick succession. One of them killed another player, Francis Henderson, 31, an army captain stationed at the Woomera rocket range.

The players flung themselves on the ground and crawled to aid Henderson and Reed. Spectators called police.

Women screamed in the grandstands as a volley of shots whistled over the field.

Then the gunman jumped to his feet and ran along the edge of the field, firing wildly as he moved. The crowd scattered in front of him.

An unarmed detective barred his way but fell back when the gunman waved his .303 rifle and shouted: "Get back."

A squad of police officers was called and the man was overpowered. His rifle had a live cartridge in the breach and six more in the magazine.

The man, Elias Gaha, was charged with murder.

B.C. COMPLETES $30,000,000 LOAN IN U.S.

Premier Satisfied With Price Obtained

British Columbia has negotiated a loan of $30,000,000 in the United States with a group of underwriters headed by The First Boston Corporation of New York, Premier Byron Johnson announced today.

"A most satisfactory price was obtained which, in view of the present market conditions, aptly indicates a strong competence in British Columbia held by investors in the United States."

"Buyers of this type of security are, as a general rule, institutions and corporations, who must be well satisfied with the economic future and stability of an area before advancing funds," the premier said.

"It was not considered possible that the Canadian market could absorb the amount required, either on long term or short term basis, nor that rates anything like as favorable could be obtained," he said.

MATURE IN 1977

Premier Johnson said the loan, therefore, was floated in New York and consisted of $7,500,000, 3 per cent serial debentures, payable in five years to 1957, and $22,500,000, 3 1/2 per cent, sinking fund debentures maturing in 1977.

The cost to the province of the serial debentures averaged at an effective rate of 3.44 per cent U.S. compared with a rate of 3.5 per cent U.S. for similar short-term security floated in New York last August, or the effective rate to the province of long-term securities was 3.73 per cent U.S. as compared with 3.75 per cent U.S. on similar securities issued at that time.

The proceeds of the loan to the extent of $20,000,000 principal amount will be used to pay off treasury bills outstanding at the bank, while the remaining $10,000,000 will be advanced to the B.C. Power Commission to pay off temporary loans, outstanding at the bank on its account.

Tomato Plants Used To Make Sex Hormones

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13 (AP)—The United States Agriculture Department reported today that the common tomato plant contains material that can be used to make sex hormones.

Chemical research has found, the agency said, that a new alkaloid called "chrysaline tomatine" can be extracted from the tomato leaf.

This alkaloid can be used as a starting material in the manufacture of the medically important sex hormones progesterone and testosterone.

Progesterone is used in drugs for the correction of menstrual disturbances, prevention of spontaneous abortions and the relief of cervical cancer. Testosterone also is used as a remedy for menstrual disturbances, and for suppressing breast cancer.

The department said the value of the new discovery lies in the fact that heretofore only three sources were available for the preparation of these drugs—animal-nerve tissues, soybeans and Mexican yams.

Production of these drugs from the animal-nerve tissue and soybeans was said to demand more chemical steps than the production of tomatine from the tomato plant.

The yam does not grow in this country.

The department said tomatine might even be converted into cortisone, a new drug being used for relief of arthritic pains. However, there are chemical difficulties to such conversion.

FULL FUNERAL STORY IN TIMES FRIDAY

To honor the late King George VI, the regular issue of the Victoria Daily Times will be turned into a memorial edition with full reports of the funeral in England, along with pictures of the events in the heart of the Commonwealth during the last week.

For non-subscribers copies of the memorial edition will be available at the regular newsstands, and from carrier boys who will have an extra supply with them while delivering their routes.

On Friday the downtown office of Victoria Press Ltd. on Broad Street will be closed but main offices on Douglas Street will be open. Public tours of the main plant, now in progress, will be canceled for the day.

WINDSOR TO FOLLOW QUEEN AT FUNERAL

Will Be First Former English King To Attend Obsequies For Successor; Rites Planned

LONDON, Feb. 13 (Reuters)—The Duke of Windsor, former King Edward VIII, will walk immediately behind Queen Elizabeth II in King George VI's funeral procession, taking his rightful place in the Royal family for the first time in public since he abdicated 16 years ago.

The Duke, arriving at Southampton in the liner Queen Mary today, will walk with the male members of the family—the Duke of Edinburgh, the Duke of Gloucester, his younger brother, and the young Duke of Kent.

Queen Mary herself will not attend the funeral of the King, a member of her household said today, according to a Reuters dispatch.

The spokesman said the 84-year-old Dowager Queen Mother is in good health but it is felt that she should not expose herself to the strain of the funeral which will be held Friday.

The Duke's position in the cortege has been a delicate problem of precedence. Since his abdication, he has never been seen in a formal appearance with the Royal family. He will be the only former King in English history to attend the funeral of his successor.

The Duke sent a message from the liner today saying he would hold a press conference.

When he disembarks, a car will take him immediately to Marlborough House, London, where he will stay with his mother, Queen Mary.

DELICATE PROBLEM

The problems of precedence, court procedure and tradition involved in Friday's state funeral are being tackled at night-and-day conferences here this week.

With the exception of a coronation, a state funeral calls for more careful and elaborate planning than any other function of pageantry in modern Britain.

But the ceremonial organization of Friday's funeral has been made more intricate by the accession of Britain's first Queen for half a century, changed times and disappearance of many monarchs.

Main burden of this week's arduous planning falls on one man—the Duke of Norfolk, premier duke and earl marshal, who by virtue of his office is responsible for arrangements for all occasions of state.

The Duke—43-year-old Bernard Marmaduke Fitzalan-Howard, 16th of his line—planned the last rites and ceremonies for King George V in 1936.

It tradition is followed Friday, Queen Elizabeth II will follow immediately after the hand-made oak coffin and the Royal standard bearer.

Then will come male members of the Royal Family. Besides the Duke of Windsor, there will be the Duke of Edinburgh, husband of the new Queen, and the Duke of Gloucester.

A customer, Charles S. Bennett, 82, of Ottawa, was seriously injured and was taken to hospital with a possible fractured leg and suffering from severe shock.

Driver of the truck, a British-American Oil Company tanker, was Wilfred Conlin, of Hull, Que. He said his vehicle went out of control as he started to pass a tow truck. The tanker went into a skid and plowed right through the entrance of the bank.

Quakes Shake Los Angeles

There are no reports of damage or casualties from the Los Angeles area, which has been jolted by more than a half a dozen mild earthquakes in the past 18 hours. The quakes started in the coastal suburbs to the west of the city last night. The latest—and worst—temblor shook the downtown area for a full minute shortly after 7 o'clock this morning, Los Angeles time.

Blair Fraser Jointly Named In Allegations

Attorney-General Gordon Wismer said today he has instructed his solicitors to issue a writ charging Maclean's Magazine and columnist Blair Fraser with libel.

The Attorney-General's suit against the magazine is based on remarks made by Fraser in his column "Backstage at Ottawa," in the Feb. 15 issue.

In this Fraser discussed the break-up in B.C.'s Coalition and said some "very odd things" happened out in B.C.

CLUBS MENTIONED

Among them, he mentioned the Attorney-General's alleged interest in a real estate transaction in Vancouver three years ago. He also discussed the club licensing system, particularly in Vancouver Centre.

Wismer said: "I realize that men in public life must expect a certain amount of abuse. My people have been in Canada for more than 200 years and there are thousands of people in Ontario bearing my name and who are in some degree my kin."

"It is bad enough that a campaign of scurrilous lies has been circulated surreptitiously, but when a prominent columnist of a national magazine circulated over the whole of Canada publishes an article, which mostly by inference and innuendo, seeks to destroy my character, then I think it is about time to give a jury of the citizens of Vancouver, where I have lived for 45 years, an opportunity to ascertain the facts and what evidence these easterners have to support their charges."

"I am perfectly content to have the issue determined in this manner."

Widow Sues Q.C.A., Estate Of Pilot

VANCOUVER, Feb. 13 (CP)—Mrs. Alice Comford today started a suit in Supreme Court to recover unstated damages for the death of her husband, Harry Thomas Comford, killed Oct. 17 in a plane crash near Nanaimo.

Defendants are Queen Charlotte Airlines Ltd. and the estate of Douglas Duncan McQueen, pilot of the plane. Twenty-three were killed when the plane hit Mt. Benson on a flight from Kelowna, B.C., to Vancouver.

Windsor Ford Employees Threaten Strike Sunday

WINDSOR, Ont., Feb. 13 (BUP)—Negotiators trying to bring labor peace to the giant Ford of Canada plant met again today in the shadow of a union ultimatum to strike Sunday if no settlement is reached.

A surprise announcement last night that both sides had agreed to resume talks that collapsed on Monday was followed sharply by a terse statement from the C.I.O. United Auto Workers' Union.

"The 8,800 assembly-line workers will strike at 10 p.m. Sunday if the resumed talks fail to effect a settlement," a spokesman announced. "They will not go past that deadline."

The ultimatum came out of a closed-door conference by 200 top-level shop stewards.

The threatened strike would

NAVY TO HONOR KING'S MEMORY

Memorial services for King George VI will be held by the R.C.N. Pacific Command on ships and shore, and by the Victoria Garrison at both Work Point and Gordon Head.

At 11, Friday morning, 200 officers and 1,000 men of the Navy will take part in services on the parade square at H.M.C.S. Naden. At 11:30, individual services will be held on board each ship, for men unable to attend the shore service.

A parade and church service will be held at Work Point Barracks at 11 in the morning, and at Gordon Head at 1:30 in the afternoon.

All Army personnel will attend a salute parade at 3 in the afternoon, when 56-minute units will be fired by the R.C.A. School of Artillery Saluting Battery. About 800 officers and men will be mustered.

The Navy will also fire minute guns at the same hour.

be the second in as many months at the nation's largest automotive plant. A 12-day walkout in December meant a "black Christmas" for most families and Mayor Arthur Reaume said his border city could not stand another one.

A union official declined to reveal who had arranged the resumption of the talks. It could not be learned, either, whether Ford President Rhys M. Sale and U.A.W. President Walter Reuther would sit in.

Fifteen of the 23 points in dispute remained unsettled when the talks collapsed Monday. Sale said the breakoff came over the question of seniority in layoffs, a clause the company wanted settled before discussing other points.

SET COURSE MONDAY

Liberal Caucus Will Determine Government Strategy For Session

By GORDON FORBES

A scrappy Liberal caucus meeting next Monday—the day before the Legislature opening—will decide the government's strategy and course of action in the present political turmoil.

The seven-man cabinet is still divided on the important question of a short session and then a general election, or a full session.

The cabinet failed to reach a decision at a meeting Monday after the return of Premier Byron Johnson from Ottawa.

Attorney-General Gordon Wismer favors a full session to get some popular legislation enacted, but it is understood Premier Johnson leans toward a short session because this would be more in line with constitutional procedure. The Premier, however, has made no announcement about his thoughts.

Private members will have considerable say in the matter. Several already have publicly supported Wismer's proposal. For this reason, the Monday caucus meeting should be spirited.

It will be one of the most important caucuses for years.

If the premier's plans are followed, the Liberals would make their platform on what they propose to do on Hospital Insurance, Workmen's Compensation, labor problems and several other issues.

accomplishments. He reasons these would be stronger than mere promises.

And so there is a stalemate which must be broken by the caucus meeting.

It is understood Premier Johnson did more business in Ottawa than he has announced so far, and he will be able to make some popular announcements soon. He can use this argument to persuade the caucus to have a short session and then an election.

A cautious politician, the premier also probably will point to the slim Liberal majority in the House, and the powerful well-informed opposition—men like Herbert Anscomb and Ernest Carson, who know their former department's inside out.

ON THE TIMES

By ART STOTT

When Paul Gallico sat down to write his "Farewell to Sport," he headed his first chapter "Mine eyes have seen the glory . . ." which is a slight variant of the opening line in the Battle Hymn of the Republic. He followed it with a book that set out his idea of the golden age of sport, golden from a financial point of view as well as in a more picturesque sense.

It was a collection of memories, some of high courage that made the heart sing, some of incredible meanness that brought nausea with their recollection.

You read through Gallico's book and captured again the high, tense moment of living in an age of heroes. Then you settled back and wondered what had happened to those heroes and what had dimmed the memory of their exploits.

Maybe you shrugged, fumbled back into your high school Latin and said something about "Sic transit . . ." which you thought vaguely expressed the fleeting passage of time.

The bright flame of great deeds on the sports field fades and gutters in time, but it doesn't go out for those involved in them.

You might get that impression if you talked, today, to William Ernest Cook, about his visit to Rochester where he enjoyed a bull session with the now old youngsters of his semi-pro baseball days. You might get the same impression if you talked to Frank Fredrickson of those great times when "Freddie" was the idol of the city's hockey faithful in Stanley Cup-bound Victoria which lived, ate and slept hockey.

They'd both tell you it's good to be remembered.

Nest Egg Of Satisfaction

Men can't live successfully in the past. But they can't live quite fully if they haven't any past to slip back into occasionally. It's part of the wealth they accumulate and it can be spent rewardingly if it's shared.

William Ernest Cook, "Ernie" to hundreds of youngsters who passed through his classes before he retired from Victoria High School, and "Ernie" to the former boys who started Canadian Rugby in this town, is convinced of the value of those memories.

"Down in Rochester," Ernie says, "they have a regular meeting of the old baseball crowd. They get together and talk over old times. It does your heart good."

Ernie took in the reunion a few months ago and the talk turned to a big game. One of the old boys spoke about a three-bagger he'd knocked out and a friend asked him if he remembered who'd pitched that day.

"Yep," said the ex-hitter, "it was a slim young fellow they'd brought down from Canada. They called him Bill Cook, but I never heard what became of him."

His friend pointed to a genial, comfortably-padded figure sitting a few seats away. "That's him," and Ernie was in.

"It's nice to be remembered," Ernie says.

Not Without Honor

But he didn't have to go to Rochester for that. If he'd talked to the old United Commercial Travelers grid players of a few decades ago, he'd have found himself not without honor in his own town. Those were the seasons when Dick Wilson, Stan Stanier, Jack Horne, Tiny Lampman, Jack McDonald and Don Macmurchie were trying to integrate a little imported Eastern Canadian knowledge of the game into Victoria's young athletic ability. Ernie was coaching, giving them the stuff he'd learned at Queens, and, at the same time, giving them a little of the stuff that was Ernie Cook.

His boys have probably forgotten the plays he brought from Kingston, but they remember the little extra that the Cook personality lent to coaching. And Ernie should feel a little proud that at least one of them says "Guys like that have a lot of influence on the people they handle. Too bad there aren't more of them."

On a visit to Rochester, Ernie Cook can relive briefly the incidents of past athletic achievement, warming himself at the fire of memory. And men like Gallico can revitalize the sleeping episodes of sport's forgotten past. A reader can scan his lines and murmur something about transitory fame.

The candle never quite goes out for those who lit it. But it burns more brightly in the younger crowd who recollect the former star not in the blaze of his triumphs, but in the more subdued and abiding light of the inspiration he gave youngsters. It's good to be remembered—particularly that way.

Canadian Catholic Missionary Reported Dead In Red Prison

HONG KONG, Feb. 15 (Reuters).—A French-Canadian Catholic missionary, Father Didace Arcand, 66, died after six months in a Chinese Communist prison about Jan. 10, a Roman Catholic spokesman stated here today.

Father Arcand had spent 41 years in China. No details are known about the circumstances of his death.

His is the latest name on the daily-growing list of China missionaries dead, missing or expelled.

Father Arcand was the superior of the Franciscan Fathers in Chefoo, Shantung Province, where he died.

He was arrested Aug. 10 last year when the Communists launched a campaign to outlaw the Legion of Mary, a Catholic lay organization helping the clergy in its work.

He had been held incommunicado since then on a charge of being a leader of the legion.

Canadian Urges Action Towards Improving U.K.-Canada Trade

LONDON, Feb. 13 (CP)—J. S. P. Armstrong, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce in Britain, today urged immediate action to improve trade relations between Canada and the United Kingdom.

Addressing the 30th annual meeting of the chamber, Armstrong, also agent-general for Ontario, said it was "lamentable" that Canadian imports had reached a virtual standstill. He deplored Britain's inability to invest in Canada while money pours in from other countries.

Canadians welcomed the decision of the United Kingdom to continue the token import scheme in spite of the existing economic situation. It was a useful contribution towards good will between both countries, but its reduction to 30 per cent of the 1939 volume disappointed many.

"The United Kingdom has always been Canada's traditional market," Armstrong said, "and as the sterling area closes its doors to her products there is no alternative but to find other markets since—like this country—Canada must export to live."

Business men in Canada, the United States and Britain would agree on the vital importance of having a prosperous United Kingdom for the common good of the world. But tribute, he suggested, should be paid to Canadian industry and labor for the support extended to the British dollar-export drive.

In some instances the commodities imported into Canada

ELIGIBLE—In Oslo, Engelbert Miller, left winger on Canada's hockey team, was declared eligible tonight by the International Ice Hockey Federation to play in the Olympics.

LEAVES—In Ottawa, Defense Minister Brooke Claxton leaves today for London and Lisbon, carrying Canada's offer to spend more than $360,000,000 on direct military aid for N.A.T.O. but nothing for economic assistance. At the Lisbon meeting of the North Atlantic Council, Claxton will be empowered to pledge Canada to a vastly increased military aid program, but he and External Affairs Minister Lester B. Pearson, council president, will reject suggestions that Canada add non-military grants to its N.A.T.O. participation.

REBUKE—Indonesia's biggest political party, Mashumi (Mohammedan party) today rejected acceptance of United States aid under the Mutual Security Act. This means that a majority in parliament probably is against accepting U.S. aid. A vote on the issue might upset the government of Premier Soekarno. The decision was a rebuke to Foreign Minister Achmed Soebardjo, who accepted M.S.A. aid without government or parliamentary approval Jan. 5. Soebardjo was accused of abandoning Indonesia's "independent foreign policy."

DAMP—From Winnipeg first shipments of damp grain from the western prairie provinces go to Duluth, Minn., for drying in bond and storage will move next week. A. F. Dollery, chief of the board of grain commissioners, inspection branch, said.

A group of seven members of the inspection staff will leave next Monday for Duluth to supervise drying operations at terminal elevators there, he said. Most of the grain going to Duluth will receive its primary inspection at Winnipeg, and the balance at Calgary, Mr. Dollery said.

TROUBLE—In Moscow the Soviet press today reported trouble at two points along Communist China's long border. In further reports from Burma about Chinese Nationalist troops there, the papers said one northern Burmese district near the Chinese border is being governed by 1,300 well-armed Nationalist troops in American uniform. The reports said they are collecting taxes and terrorizing the people but that popular resistance is rising.

From Peiping, the press reported a sharp attack in the Communist organ Jen Min Jih on reported British persecution of Chinese "patriots" in Hong Kong. The papers referred to "British occupation" of Hong Kong and accused Britain of turning its colony into an advance base for American war against China.

CARNIVAL—The president of New Westminster's Junior Chamber of Commerce drove over the Pattullo Bridge at 5.59 p.m. Tuesday night. Frank Harris was the last person to pay toll on the Fraser River span, and his car was followed by a parade of automobiles whose drivers paid nothing. Carnival atmosphere prevailed as tolls were removed on Pattullo Bridge by order of the provincial government.

DIED—In Ottawa, Col. John Thomas Thompson, 80, son of one of Canada's early prime ministers, and a former director of government economy control, died Tuesday.

A native of Halifax, he was the son of the late Sir John Thompson, Conservative prime minister of Canada from 1892 to 1894, and was educated in England and at Osgoode Hall, Toronto. He practised law in Toronto before moving to Ottawa.

He served overseas in the First World War and was appointed head of the pensions commission on his return. Later he became director of government economy control.

It was while in this post in 1943 that reports were published quoting him as charging extravagance and waste in the operation of government offices. He denied the reports but the incident led to his resignation from his government post.

PRESENT—Employees of the Winnipeg Electric Company's transportation services will report for work as usual Friday, the day of mourning set aside for the funeral of the late King.

Winnipeg Electric Employees' Federated Council (One Big Union) announced Tuesday night it had reached agreement with the company on the employment of maintenance staffs and traffic employees during the day of mourning.

Tuesday, some reports indicated the city might be without street car or bus service Friday unless the day was treated by Winnipeg Electric Company as a statutory holiday, giving employees a full day's pay.

DIED—In Toronto, Senator Sir Allen Bristol Aylesworth, 97, former Canadian minister of justice, died today.

Death of Sir Allen left the standing in the 102-seat upper house to: Liberals, 77; Progressive Conservatives, nine, with 16 vacancies.

There now are four Ontario vacancies, six in Quebec, three in New Brunswick, and one each in Prince Edward Island, Manitoba and British Columbia.

New York Times Says Canadian Favored
For Position As Group's Secretary-General

NEW YORK, Feb. 13 (CP)—The New York Times said today in a London dispatch that the choice for secretary-general of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization is between Canada's external affairs minister, L. B. Pearson, and Sir Oliver Franks, British ambassador in Washington.

New P.O.W. Plan Agreed To By U.N.

MUNSAN, Korea, Feb. 13 (AP).—Allied negotiators today accepted a 60-day limit on exchanging prisoners and offered to compromise their demands for supervising a Korean truce.

The Communists had proposed the 60-day limit. The exchange period is to start when an armistice is signed. The agreement does not touch the key question of voluntary repatriation.

The United Nations command, holding 132,000 prisoners, had wanted 30 days more than was allowed the Reds to complete the exchange. The Reds list only 11,559 men in Red P.O.W. camps. Allied staff officers negotiating details for supervising a truce offered a two-point compromise.

WOULD DROP DEMANDS

1. If Communists agree to rotating 40,000 troops a month to allow to men on temporary leave, the Allies will drop two demands the Reds oppose.

One of these would forbid shifting troops during a truce in a manner that could constitute an offensive threat. The other would require weekly reports on the location of all major military units.

The Reds originally agreed to rotating 5,000 men monthly. They have increased this to 30,000. The Allies originally asked 75,000, including men on rest and recuperating leave to Japan.

2. Both sides "meet headway" on the number of ports of entry through which troops and arms would move under neutral supervision during a truce.

The Allies had proposed eight. Wednesday they cut it to seven. The Reds had proposed three. Tuesday they increased it to four.

There was no word from the Communists when they would have ready their new proposed solution for the fifth and final item of the armistice agenda. This deals with recommendations to the governments concerned for a settlement of the Korean problem.

The Reds promised Tuesday to draft a new plan. It will be presented to a full dress negotiating session.

Reds Probing U.N. Line As Thaw Starts

SEOUL, Korea, Feb. 13 (AP).—A light touch of spring hit Korea's eastern front today, along with probing Communist infantrymen. The mild weather was continuing and a thaw was starting.

Allied troops spotted about 200 Reds in the Mundung valley, but the Communists did not attack. In the same area Tuesday U.N. soldiers killed 96 Reds and wounded 130.

United States Fifth Air Force planes cut Communist rail lines in 35 places Wednesday morning. Pilots also reported destruction of two locomotives and one Red anti-aircraft position.

The air force flew 301 sorties Tuesday and cut rails in 105 spots. Nine B-29 Superforts bombed the Suwon south bypass rail bridge Tuesday night. Three other B-29's hit the rail yards at Samdong and one raided the Kyompo steel mill.

Allied fighters and bombers attacked 100 Red trucks Tuesday night and destroyed 19. Pilots also reported a string of 16 box cars destroyed in Northwest Korea.

Daughter Of Pioneers Will Rest In Saanich

Residents from all sections of Saanich today paid their last respects to Mrs. Annie Michell, pioneer resident of Saanich who died Saturday night.

Archdeacon A. E. de L. Nunns conducted the well-attended funeral service at Hayward's this afternoon at 1.30, and interment followed at Royal Oak.

Mrs. Michell's death marked the end of a lifetime of 76 years in Saanich. One of eight children of Mr. and Mrs. William Turgoose—seven daughters and one son—she was born in the family home on East Saanich Road opposite the Prairie Inn.

Three years earlier William D. Michell was born at his family's homestead on Telegraph Bay Road. As they grew older they went to classes together in the little school on Veynes Road.

On Feb. 17, 1897, Annie Turgoose and William Michell were married in St. Mary's Church. They lived at the Michell farm all their lives, and raised a family of five boys and two girls. They celebrated their golden wedding anniversary in 1947, and two years later Mr. Michell died.

During a busy life Mrs. Michell found time to be president of South Saanich Women's Institute, director of North and South Saanich Agricultural Society (and a constant exhibitor and prize-winner in its fall fairs).

The almost 170 blind people living in Greater Victoria are going to have one of the most modern recreation spots in Canada on completion of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind service centre on Blanshard Street in April.

The building has nine rooms, including an auditorium with a seating capacity for 150. Three rooms have been set aside for use by the field secretary, local secretary and the home teacher. The home teacher's room will be used for group teaching of knitting, Braille or Moon reading and typewriting.

In the front of the building is a circular salesroom with a floor area of approximately 400 square feet, where goods made by the sightless, such as basket weave, leather work and knitted articles may be sold.

There is also a large lounge room equipped with comfortable living-room type furniture, a radio and record player. It will be open to all from 9 in the morning to 5 at night.

The auditorium is situated towards the rear of the building and is equipped with a stage to be used for lectures and concerts by the White Cane Club. Indirect lighting behind birch plywood walls, along with acoustic plaster to reduce all echoes, is the outstanding feature of this large room.

At the back of the building is a large occupational work room. Here the blind craftsmen will be able to work with the aid of all the latest tools.

A large water tank is being constructed to be used for soaking reeds for weaving baskets, cane-seated and fibre-seated chairs and doll's furniture. The workshop will also be supplied with carpenter's benches.

With the exception of the auditorium, all floors in the up-to-date building will be of terra cotta tiling. The auditorium floor will be made of maple.

All rooms will be painted in soft colors. Offices will be done in pale primrose, and the lounge room will be in pale green. The auditorium will be painted in pale mulberry. Excluding the auditorium, all rooms will feature semi-indirect lighting.

The front of the building facing on Blanshard Street is circular with large plate glass windows. There are also small areas for growing shrubs, which are being donated by Layritz Nurseries.

Lieutenant-Governor Clarence Wallace will officially open the service centre on April 3, and it will be ready for public inspection for two days starting April 5.

Meeting At Lisbon

THE LISBON CONFERENCE OF THE North Atlantic Treaty Organization on February 16 was supposed to create a European army and to distribute the cost of defense between all members of the alliance. It is not likely to accomplish either purpose. Things are not going rapidly or smoothly with N.A.T.O.

In the first place, a sudden clash between Germany and France has created an unexpected roadblock on the way toward European military unity.

France has undertaken a disturbing demarche in the Saar by appointing an ambassador to that area, thus by implication recognizing it as a potential sovereign state, whereas its future was to be left in abeyance until a peace treaty was signed with a re-united Germany.

The German government replies that it will not enter the proposed European army until Germany's interests in the Saar are made equal to those of France. A struggle is on for the control of a vital industrial area between the two countries.

Secondly, Germany says it will not join the European defense forces until it is admitted to full membership in N.A.T.O. This is a reasonable request, if Germany is to bear a large share of the cost of joint defense, but as against France's fears of German militarism, it is probable that a final answer to Germany will have to be postponed for a time.

Thirdly, the problem of distributing the cost of the latest N.A.T.O. budget has proved much more difficult than was foreseen when the Three Wise Men made their famous report. Even in the case of Canada, one of the two rich partners, it is not easy to secure a contribution toward the cost of defense satisfactory to the Canadian government and to the N.A.T.O. authorities.

It will be surprising, therefore, if the Lisbon conference can do more than reorganize the clumsy structure of N.A.T.O., begin to adjust the dispute between Germany and France, and make some progress in the completion of the defense budget.

This is no cause for surprise. It takes more than a few weeks to reconcile the old rivalries of western Europe's two largest nations and to arrange a defense budget which involves great disturbances to national budgets and living standards.

The important thing is that, even without a full-fledged European army, defense is making great progress with some 27 divisions in the line already as against virtually no defense at all two years ago. The real question, apart from technical difficulties and the politics which Germany and France are playing over the Saar, is whether from now on the European states stand ready to undertake large new economic burdens for defense and whether the United States Congress is prepared to vote the money which they must have if the joint plan is to succeed. Until Congress has acted on Mr. Truman's request for foreign aid no answer to those questions need be expected.

And behind that stands the much larger question whether the free world as a whole is ready to do for defense what must be done in the next two or three years if N.A.T.O. is to succeed and if we are ever to reach a position of "bargaining from strength" with Russia.

Off To A Good Start

IT SPEAKS WELL FOR THE DEMOCRATIC future of India that, less than five years after achieving independence, the first general election is being carried off with marked success.

Out of an electorate of 176 millions, more than three-quarters of whom are illiterate, more than half are casting their ballots. That is a voting average that compares favorably with some elections on this continent. The public response to this first call to exercise the franchise is gratifying alike to the Indians and to those in other countries who wish to see the parliamentary system firmly established in this new republican member of the Commonwealth.

Although final results of the immense poll will not be available for a month or more, sufficient returns have been made to gauge the trend of opinion. Prime Minister Nehru's Congress Party will retain its leadership in the national parliament and the state assemblies. But it comes as somewhat of a surprise that his main opposition will consist of Communist members. The Marxists proved unexpectedly strong in the south, whereas the Socialists proved generally weak. The Hindu Rightists, espousing reactionary, racist policies, have fortunately won little support among the people.

Mr. Nehru will therefore carry no overall majority when he faces the first session of the parliament. He may find that his major task is to effect acceptable compromises on much of the government's legislation. But observers of the outcome see no serious threat to implementation of his announced program, particularly where this embraces economic and social reforms.

In philosophy and art India has given much to the world, but she has a long way to travel in mastering the intricacies of modern civilization in which universal education and scientific knowledge play such large parts. The response in the current election, however, has demonstrated the determination of the people to master the great mechanism of democracy. In that respect the republic is to be congratulated.

Long-Term License Plates

WITH LUCK, BRITISH COLUMBIA motorists may be skinning their knuckles for the last time in five years as they put on their license plates this month. The new aluminum plaques are expected to last that long, tabs being placed on them each year to bring them up to date.

The long-term plates are a step in the right direction. It has been argued in these columns at an earlier date that much confusion, expense and annoyance would be avoided if the license plates were made and installed to last the lifetime of a car. Motor vehicles would be more easily identified if the number on them were not subject to frequent change. An owner would have less difficulty in remembering his license in the event of car theft and the irritation of fixing plates to the body would be reduced, if not eliminated.

The aluminum licenses will not last indefinitely. They should, however, have much longer life than the ones they replace. And in time, car designers may follow the pattern suggested by engineers to permit insertion of licenses behind plexiglass, or some other transparent shield, from the inside of the vehicle, thereby preventing removal.

As it is, the B.C. motorist will still require luck to avoid the knuckle-barking procedure of replacing plates. On most new cars the front license is affixed to the bumper in a position as exposed as possible.

It is encouraging to know that the plates are designed to last five years. But it is a little discouraging to see where so many of them are located. Like a prize-fighter's nose, they deserve better protection than many of them will receive.

Strange Words For Canadians

THE REPORT OF MAJOR FRED J. Ney's remarks to the Empire Youth Movement here last week makes strange reading for Canadians.

Major Ney described the deep faith Communist youth has for the power that lies within the Kremlin and added: "We have so little to oppose it, we don't even have a very deep-rooted faith."

Memory is not so short that our citizens have forgotten the faith which inspired Canadian youth to take up arms from 1939 to 1945, just as a previous generation had done from 1914 to 1918, to defend a way of life Canadians cherish.

Can any greater proof of faith be supplied?

It is not the nature of Canadians to swing to fanatical demonstrations, be they of faith or sheer jingoism. Yet lack of ostentatious displays should not be judged as an absence of faith. It was faith in the democratic conviction and the advantages of association in the Commonwealth family of nations which has led to the growth and strength of that association. And when Major Ney, referring to the change from the "British Empire" to the "British Commonwealth of Nations," says "we told the world we had doubts about the Empire," his remarks deserve further elaboration.

The Commonwealth is a healthy evolutionary development of what went before it. It is a means of recognizing the maturity of the nations which form it, nations which, having come of age, still see the tangible and intangible values of the family associations and intend to preserve them.

The remarks attributed to Major Ney do nothing to strengthen the spirit of unity and co-operation on which the partnership of nations within the Commonwealth depends, but they will raise question in some Canadian parents' mind over the fare the Empire Youth Movement has to offer the young generation of this country.

A Magistrate Calls Them 'Punks'

MAGISTRATE LIONEL BEEVOR-Potts of Nanaimo has given juvenile delinquents brought before him no chance to savor with the false glamor of young desperadoes. The magistrate has referred to a group in his court as "punks," a descriptive noun that qualifies them completely. More than that, he has sent one with an exaggerated hair style out to the barber before hearing his case.

Magistrate Beever-Potts has put the young hoodlums exactly in their place—a position as unenviable as it is deserved.

They are not boy bandits. They are not young Robin Hoods. They are not big-time criminals in the making. They are just "punks"—"punks" to their elders and "punks" to their contemporaries.

It should be difficult for a delinquent to make much capital from that label among any weak-minded youngsters formerly impressed by notoriety.

The term is not often heard from the bench. It is not dignified. Yet it is explicit and could be highly effective in exposing certain types of juveniles for what they are.

France Points Up Multiple Crisis

By JOSEPH and STEWART ALSOP

From Washington

THE FRENCH are quietly going broke, and no one seems to know just what to do about it. This seems to be the best way to sum up the newest crisis, in this city surfeited with crises.

The facts, as usual, are repellently technical. But the essentials of the situation are, simple enough.

The rock bottom of the French financial system is the reserve of hard currency, less than a billion in gold and dollars, which is used as backing for the franc. For various reasons, including the strains of rearmament and the balance of European payments, the French treasury is scraping this rock bottom.

THE FRENCH experts themselves believe that, unless some way out is found, it will be necessary in a matter of four or five weeks to make an impossible choice. Either the government can dip into the reserve, with fatal effects on the already enfeebled franc. Or the whole French armaments program can be gutted. If the choice is between economic disaster or stopping rearmament, the latter course will be chosen.

This means, of course, that the whole N.A.T.O. program, which is squarely based on the French defense effort, is in serious danger. The American experts believe the danger can be dealt with somehow, largely by spending as quickly as possible the $300,000,000 allotted for defense purposes in France this year. A junior state department official, Henry Labrousse, has been sent to France to investigate the possibilities of keeping the situation glued together, and no doubt in the end the glueing operation will be made to work temporarily in one way or another.

YET THE FACT that this sort of imminent danger—which three or four years ago would have had this city in an uproar—is now treated wholly as a matter of course, says something rather important about the world situation and the current American response to it. In fact, an increasing number of the highest American policy makers have been having a hard new look at the whole range of the American security program, and they are coming to the view that there is something radically wrong with it.

Congress willing, the United States will be spending something close to $70,000,000,000 for straight military purposes this year, including appropriations to the armed services, the expanded atomic program, base construction, and exclusively military overseas aid. In contrast, only $2,500,000,000 is being asked for economic-political purposes, in order to deal with a whole series of economic-political soft spots of which that in France is only a sample. And the Congress is honing its knife to cut even this amount.

THERE ARE, IN FACT, two dangers to our security. One is the danger of Communist aggression, to which the aggression in Korea, invited by Louis A. Johnson's disarmament plan, awakened the country. The other is the danger of economic-political collapse at some key point in the world. This danger still exists, perhaps even more than in the days of the Marshall Plan, but since Korea we have increasingly tended to shove it under the rug.

It is easy enough to show that this is so. The Anglo-American alliance is in appalling danger, for purely economic reasons. The stringent sacrifices now being imposed on the British people after 10 years of austerity might quite conceivably bring down the Churchill government, and bring in a new cabinet including strong representations of the professional American-baiters. The Anglo-American alliance, the hard core of strength in the western world, could hardly survive a Bevanite British government.

THE COUNTRIES of the Middle East might go down one after the other, like a row of nine-pins, even within the next 12 months. Yet the United States still has no real policy in the Middle East, and we cannot have a policy in the Middle East unless we are willing and able to spend money there. Indeed, we cannot even persuade the British to adopt a policy based on the realities of the Middle Eastern situation, unless the British can also be persuaded that they will win on the American swings what they lose on the Middle Eastern roundabouts. Otherwise the British will continue their present policy of trying to hang on by their teeth to what scraps of economic advantage remain to them in the Middle East, with ultimately fatal consequences.

India, where the Communists have made important gains in the current elections, is another potential danger point. So is Japan, where a new economic crisis threatens. And there are several others which could be mentioned.

IN BRIEF, some of the most thoughtful policy-makers are beginning to wonder if our $70,000,000,000 security program is not rather like a 70-foot rope, lowered to a man caught at the bottom of an 80-foot well. For the lack of a couple of extra feet, in economic-political aid, at the bottom of the $70,000,000,000 rope, the whole expensive, painful effort to strengthen and save the free world might fail.

Gamblers

New York Times

One has only to stand at any of the midtown street corners during an average day to witness scores of people endangering their own lives and those of passing motorists with a form of behavior utterly devoid of common sense. Edging out from the safety of the curb line, racing across a street in the middle of the block, standing precariously in the middle of the street as cars brush past fore and aft, or deliberately ignoring a motorist's right-of-way and walking emphatically in front of his vehicle seem to be methods of crossing a street all too close to the heart of the New Yorker.

He's Looking Over A Four-Leaf Clover

As Our Readers See It

Twice Called

On Jan. 16, 1952, Miss Holmes, co-owner of the Marr Winn Beauty Salon, received a telephone call from Mr. McIsaac, Nanaimo, demanding her presence at Nanaimo as a witness in a court trial on Jan. 17.

Not being conversant with legal procedure Miss Holmes left on two hours' notice. On arrival at Nanaimo she found no one there to meet her and after getting in touch with said lawyer was informed that the case was not to be held. She returned to Victoria, again taking the night bus in order to be back on duty.

On Jan. 21 two of the younger members of the Court House in Victoria served a subpoena on Miss Holmes to appear at Nanaimo on Jan. 23. Again Miss Holmes left and on arrival in Nanaimo was informed that the case had again been postponed owing to the refusal of the judge to travel from Victoria in order to preside at the trial.

I definitely feel that it should be obligatory for the judge to travel 100 miles twice, after a day's work, and never even be called to the witness stand.

Personally I consider both judges and lawyers should remember that they are the public's servants, not its masters. CHARLES G. LACEY.

Sabbath

Your correspondent "Swedenborgian" in the Times of Feb. 6 bases his belief in the Sabbath on the Christian day of worship on the passage in John 20, 19. Quoting the literal translation, "Being their evening on that day, the first of the Sabbaths."

There are eight references in the New Testament to passages where the expression "First day of the week" is found, of which the one above is one. In six of these references the literal Greek translation is "One of the Sabbaths," in one it is "One of the Sabbaths," and in the eighth it is "The first of the Sabbaths." The word "day" is implied in each case in the Greek owing to the particular ending of the numeral "one" or adjective "first."

The Jews had no names as we do for each day of the week but called them one, two, three, etc., of the Sabbath and the seventh day as the Sabbath. Thus the word Sabbath in such cases, stands for the week, as we would say the first, second, etc., day of the week.

One cannot rightly claim any authority from these passages for teaching that the Resurrection Day of our Saviour brought in the observance of the first day of the week as the New Testament day of worship. The doctrines of the Bible are not based on mere suppositions but on a clear "Thus saith the Lord," in every case.

INERRANCY OF THE BIBLE

"Inerrancy of the Bible" has been proved by the science of numerics. About 50 years ago Dr. Ivan Panin, a Russian exile domiciled in the U.S.A., discovered a curious pattern of sevens covering the entire range of Holy Writ.

Being a master mathematician as well as an accomplished Hebraist and Greek scholar, he had the advantage of studying the Scriptures in their original texts, to which he applied himself assiduously over a course of years and, by means of a series of acid tests, proved beyond all doubt that the Bible from Genesis to Revelations is overarched by this septenary design.

Contrariwise, he proved the impossibility for men, unaided by any supernatural influence, to have composed the Scriptures on the basis of this numerical system.

Along with two other scholars he spent some weeks attempting to compose a passage first in Hebrew then in Greek bearing this numerical plan, but he confesses that before even seven features had been attained the composition itself had degenerated into nonsensical drivel. Thus he concluded that the sevenfold order is scientific proof that the Bible is of Divine authorship and that the human recorders were divinely inspired.

Says the noted Dr. Jowett of London: "Panin has demonstrated by means of an infallible proof that the Bible in its entirety is the very Word of the Living God."

COMPETITION

Julian Lee, a blind musician and musical arranger, has been refused a visa to enter Canada. The Canadian Press reports that Lee and his wife wish to come here from New Zealand but that union regulations prevent him joining the Canadian Musicians' Union or playing commercially here for 12 months and that, rather than risk having Lee face a year of idleness, our immigration authorities have refused him a visa.

Perhaps there is more to this incident than is reported in the press but on the known facts it does not seem likely that the majority of Canadians would approve the principle of turning away a prospective new citizen because he may face hardship on arrival here.

Those Canadians who put pressure on the government to exclude immigrants who might compete with them for jobs should recognize that if their kind of thinking had always controlled our government's policies they themselves might not be in Canada today. Most of our forefathers arrived here without visible means of support and survived to contribute to the country's progress and prosperity.

Most Canadians are satisfied to accept as one of the lesser, and normal, hazards of life competition in their jobs. Even those who work to exclude people in their own trades, professions or businesses would have to agree that as Canada's population has grown, Canada's standard of living has climbed, and that for our own continued prosperity we must strive to multiply the number of people living and working in Canada.

But too often it is evident that Ottawa is susceptible to the pleas of people who do not want to face possible competition for work from new Canadians. Julian Lee may never get to Canada, but it is not possible that the loss will be ours rather than his?

Clarifying N.A.T.O. 'Defense'

By WALTER LIPPMANN

LAST week two U.S. senators were discussing the admission of Greece and Turkey to the North Atlantic Treaty. Senator Watkins of Utah, wishing to learn all he could about the matter, turned to Senator Gillette of Iowa, reminded Mr. Gillette that he was a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, and then asked him this question: "Will the senator from Iowa indicate how many more square miles of territory we will be required to defend in case of an attack upon Turkey?"

To this Senator Gillette replied: "I cannot answer the question. As the able senator from Utah will recall, I stated a few moments ago that it amounted to thousands of square miles."

Senator Watkins is troubled, as are very many others, by the Korean precedent. He is trying to limit the President's power to deploy American troops abroad because he does not wish to be told, without being consulted about it first, that an American army is being sent to "defend" more square miles of territory. This is the heart and substance also, I venture to think, of Mr. Taft's complaining of his repeated, though not very successful, attempts to invoke the Constitution against the President.

PROPER ANSWER

Now the proper answer to Senator Watkins is that as he understands the word "defend"—namely as meaning the defense of territory with a ground army—there is no obligation whatsoever under the treaty for any nation to "defend" any other nation. That is to say there is no obligation to use troops to hold any particular square mile of territory.

The obligation which is binding on all the treaty members is to go to war against the nation which attacks any one of them. But there is nothing in the treaty which stipulates how each nation must wage that war. That is a strategic problem which has to be worked out by each country in consultation with its allies. The solution of the strategic problem is not and could not be predetermined by the treaty.

If ever the treaty were interpreted as Senator Watkins fears, the alliance would immediately fall apart. If every member had to "defend" every other member's territory, then it would be necessary to organize at once international armies, garrisoned in every N.A.T.O. country that has a common frontier with the Soviet Union or with a Soviet satellite. These international armies stationed in Turkey and Greece, in Italy, in Norway and Denmark, would each of them have to be as big as all the Communist forces which could be thrown against them if that were the point chosen for the attack. That is, of course, impossible. The idea of any such dispersing of forces is a military absurdity, and those who conceived and promoted this treaty never entertained such an idea.

COMMITTED AGAINST AGGRESSION

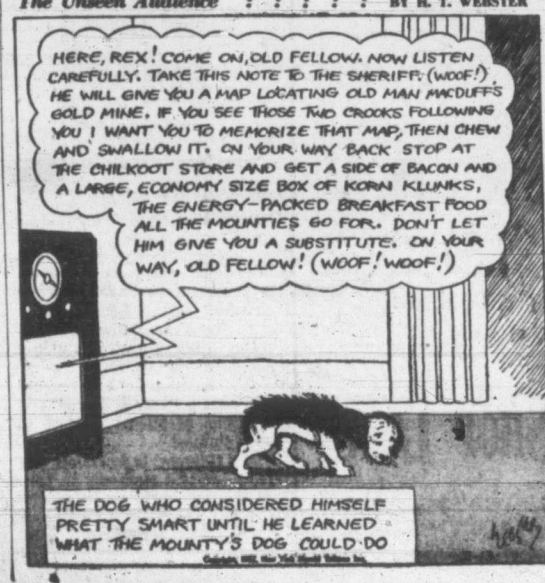

The great purpose and virtue of the treaty is that it has created an organized guarantee against Soviet expansion by military means into Europe and the Middle East. The crux of the treaty is that it has committed Great Britain with its empire, France with its empire, and North America to organize a strategic combination for quick military retaliation against aggression across any of the western frontiers of the Communist orbit.

This organized guarantee by the great military powers of the Western World is what protects the exposed and weak countries on the borders of the Communist orbit. It protects not only the treaty members but no less effectively several countries which have not signed the treaty. It protects—to cite an extreme but illuminating example—the western half of the city of Berlin, though it is surrounded by the Red Army. It protects Iran against invasion. It protects the whole of Scandinavia including Finland against invasion. This protection comes not from the presence of adequate or even of token forces of American infantrymen but from the deterrent power of the military coalition.

LESS DISTURBING

When Senator Watkins has understood the difference between a guarantee and "defense"—in his sense of the word—I would expect him to be less disturbed by the issues he has been trying to define. A clearer understanding of that distinction would help many others besides Senator Watkins. It would, I believe, have helped the armistice negotiators in Korea who spent an unconscionable amount of energy and time on achieving a "defensible" ground frontier. It would do much to clarify our understanding of what follows in case an armistice is broken and the war is renewed. It would do much to clarify our policy in N.A.T.O. if we re-examined the various proposals now under discussion to strengthen it—asking of each whether or not it makes the overall deterrent guarantee more effective.

VISION

"I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills."
—Ps. 121:1.

Do you draw strength from faroff hills? The Psalmist tells us how he stills... The worries that beset men's souls... He lifts his eyes to distant goals... And he has faith in aid that comes... From high up there he succumbs... To strengthen him down on the plain... As he resolves the heights to gain... So for your faith and spirit lift up your eyes unto the hills.

Citizenship Problems

London Free Press

In much glib bandying about of the terms "citizenship" and "democracy," it is interesting to discover the Local Council of Women viewing the usage with thought and humility. At a recent meeting of the council with "the duty of citizenship" as the theme, the nature of citizenship was described by Dr. Eleanor Jared as "spiritual" and therefore not to be produced by legislation alone. In a forum which wished to take in attending members the ideal citizen was found to claim rights from "no mean city" since he held these in his community, his country, his world, and in the "City of God."

This concept would seem to take care of the vexed problem of international loyalties, which might not thus be found to conflict with the more immediate and intimate duties of home, community and nation. The practical formula for all human relationships would thus be applicable here. This is found in an old rule, laid down many centuries ago, and now identified by the word "golden."

Nehru Beats Silent Holy Man By 176,000

NEW DELHI, Feb. 13 (Reuters)—Prime Minister Nehru today won the parliamentary seat for his home district, Allahabad, beating his nearest rival, "Holy Man" Prabhoo Datt Brahmachari, by a majority of 176,000 in the Indian federal elections. Nehru's opponent, a 55-year-old Hindu, took a vow of silence 10 years ago and has since communicated with his devotees only in writing. Campaign supporters made his speeches for him. He represented Hindu orthodox challenge to Nehru, mainly on the issue of the Indian government's Hindu Code Bill, which seeks to liberalize Hindu law on marriage and women's right to property.

Nehru polled 233,571 votes against 56,718 for the bearded, bearded holy man.

Pearson Warns Of Over-Optimism

LONDON, Feb. 13 (CP)—L. B. Pearson, Canadian minister of external affairs, said today nobody should be surprised if the North Atlantic Treaty powers come away from next week's important meeting at Lisbon with one or two problems still unsolved.

The public, he said, tends to take it too much for granted that this meeting or that meeting will "settle" things, leaving all problems resolved. He implied that the questions which will be discussed at Lisbon may often be too difficult to "settle" that easily.

The Canadian minister, who leaves for Lisbon Saturday to act as chairman at the N.A.T.O. meetings, discussed the conference agenda with reporters at an informal gathering in Canada House. Probably the most important topic will be the question of German participation in western defense.

Pearson said he hopes this most delicate issue will get a good, thorough discussion which will take us a long step forward. The Lisbon conference will also consider proposals for streamlining N.A.T.O. including the appointment of a permanent secretary-general and increased powers for the council of deputies.

L. Dana Wilgress, Canadian high commissioner in London, is Canada's representative on the council of deputies. If the new proposal is approved Wilgress, in the absence of a Canadian minister, will sit as a member of the council.

AUSTRALIA MUST DECIDE ON '56 OLYMPICS BY MAY

OSLO, Feb. 13 (AP)—The International Olympic Committee has given Australia until May-15 to decide whether the 1956 Olympic Games can be held in Melbourne.

Announcement of the action was made by Dr. Otto Mayer, chancellor of the committee.

The question of holding the Olympic Games in Melbourne was thrown open two days ago when the board of governors of the Melbourne Cricket Ground decided that the big arena could not be used for the games.

If Melbourne declines the 1956 games, strong bids for the honor probably will be entered by such U.S. cities as Detroit, Los Angeles, Minneapolis, Philadelphia and Chicago.

BUS ACCIDENT REVEALED

Canada's Hockey Team Hard Hit By Injuries

OSLO, Feb. 13 (CP)—Canada's Olympic hockey team decided today to go through with its scheduled exhibition against the United States despite injuries.

"We'll go ahead with the game although we may have to borrow players from other teams," Doug Grimston of New Westminster, B.C., president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said after a huddle with officials of the Edmonton Mercurys.

"We made the commitment and we'll stick to it."

The Mercurys had been in favor of calling off the game because six players came out of the team's European tour with leg and arm injuries.

A major factor in the decision was that the 10,000 seats in Oslo's Jordal Amfi Stadium had been sold out.

NO DICE

Officials of the Norwegian Hockey Association said "nothing doing" when the Mercurys tried to beg off, explaining that further injuries might result from the game and weaken the team for the Olympic competition beginning Friday.

It is known that the question of reinforcements for the Mercurys has been discussed but no action has been taken yet.

The hockey squad was involved in a high-way accident in Sweden, coach Lou Holmes revealed today. Several players received slight cuts.

The accident occurred last Friday when members of the Edmonton Mercurys were traveling by bus for a game at Laksand.

"The wheels locked as we rounded a curve on the highway and the bus went over a ditch and toppled against a tree," Holmes said.

"It was a mess. The players were tossed around and we were lucky to get out with only slight injuries."

Engelbert Miller received a cut face, George Abel came out with a sore back and Tom Pollock had an arm cut. Another bus picked up the team an hour later and the Mercurys played that night. They won 7-2.

Line-ups follow:

McMorran's—Jones 4, Dobbie 12, Garden 11, Grabe 1, R. Bennett 4, C. Bennett, Cunningham, Henderson, Harris, Smith, Total, 39.

Mount View—Murray 13, Price 2, Snowsell 17, Pringle, Pritchard 4, K. Knudsen 1, E. Knudsen, Granger, Osterlin, Total, 41.

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y.—Frankie (Kid) Anselmi, 167 lb., Philadelphia, knocked out Dick Cassidy, 168, Newark, N.J., 11.

SACRAMENTO, Calif.—Bobo Olson, 162, Honolulu, outpointed Woody Harper, 152, Oakland, Calif., 10.

NEWARK, N.J.—Jack Hall, 164, New York, knocked out Curtis Moore, 169, Newark 11.

Leave the dishes in the sink ma, tonight is bank night at the arena. It's the night when you and all your other hockey fan friends cash in, courtesy of the Commercial Hockey League.

"Fan Appreciation Night" they call it.

You go to the arena, you buy a program or as many as you want, you see three hockey games and are a candidate for 26 prizes.

The beneficiaries of the night are the fans, who get a crack at the prizes; the injured players, who will receive a cut of the gate receipts for their pains; and the Protestant Orphanage which benefits from program receipts.

Top prize on the list is a Sunbeam-Mixmaster with a waffle iron and a table lamp. Other prizes are five cases of 7-Up, three juicy steaks, a hamper of groceries; two hampers of canned salmon, a set of three silver knives, five $10 merchandise scrips and four $5 scrips.

When the programs are sold at the door, a number corresponding to the number in the program will be dropped into a barrel. Fans can buy as many programs as they wish.

Between the second and third periods of the second game, numbers will be drawn from the barrel for the prizes. The prizes will be presented immediately after the game.

REFUSES TO APOLOGIZE TO CARSON

Horgan Suspended After 'Trial'

By DENNY BOYD

The 1951-52 basketball season has been charged with a good many torrid moments but none have been so memorable as the "trial" of Pat Horgan, conducted by the Victoria and District Basketball League Tuesday night.

Horgan, manager of Individuals, was convicted of the issuance (in the form of press releases) of statements detrimental to the well-being of the Victoria and District Basketball League, public contempt and libel of a member of the league.

The statements, made by Horgan to newspaper men, accused an association member of "constant insipid blundering." Horgan's ire was aroused over the forced cancellation of the Kinsman Basketball Tournament when he and league president Tommy Carson clashed over the site of the tourney.

Horgan appeared before the directorate of the league Tuesday night.

What had been called a "trial" turned into a harangue between Horgan, the accused, and Carson, who occupied the chair.

Horgan was told by Carson at the commencement of the trial that he was guilty until he could prove himself innocent. Horgan then pleaded not guilty and was given permission to state his defense.

From then until the verdict was reached, the trial was little more than a shouting match between the two personalities.

At one point, Horgan asked if he had the floor. He was told "you are on trial; there's no such thing as having the floor."

Minutes later, when Horgan interrupted Carson, he was told to be quiet, Carson saying, "I have the floor."

After hearing events leading up to the cancellation of the tournament and Horgan's subsequent statements, Horgan was asked to leave the room. The directorate agreed the entire hassle had started when Horgan misinterpreted information given him by Gar Taylor and Sid Watson of the league executive, who cannot make final decisions without Carson's approval.

Horgan was then called back into the room and told that if he would rescind his press statements and apologize for his libel, the matter would be dropped.

Horgan stated, "I cannot do that, Mr. President. I do not believe in it." He was then asked to leave the room again when it was decided he was to be suspended until he apologized.

Horgan stated this morning, "It is too bad this thing had to happen at this time. My sole interest has been for the betterment of basketball in Victoria."

"I firmly believe that our kids are on the way to at least a B.C. championship. I am profoundly sorry for any inconvenience that I have caused most members of the league as all but one gave me full co-operation in the Kinsman effort."

One charge that I am most concerned with reads "conduct detrimental to the well-being of the V. and D. League."

I sincerely believe that I am not guilty of that charge. My remarks concerned but one member of the league. As that party presided over the trial which convicted me as guilty as charged, I am convinced it was a mis-trial.

On the OUTDOOR FRONT

By ROY THORSEN

Veteran sportsman James Beatty does not mind increased license fees for hunting and freshwater fishing. "If they'll use some of that to make the woods and farmlands safer places to enter."

Beatty was referring to the many trigger-happy Harveys who take to the game trails these days "and make things about as dangerous as being in the front line of a war front."

He would like to see every person who applies for a license put through a stiff test to see if he is qualified to "take up arms" without being a menace to fellow followers of those same trails.

There are thousands of Beatty supporters in this line of thought, both young and old, who love to plunge into the island woods for a spell each fall to try and line up game targets—but not with the risks involved today, especially on opening days.

LICENSES HIGHER
The firearms license—you can't hunt without one—will be raised from $3 to $4. The non-tidal fishing license is hiked a buck to $2, without being a B.C. government order-in-council.

The Canadian non-B.C. resident will have to pay $5 instead of $3.50 to fish in non-tidal waters. Deer tags will cost 50 cents instead of 25 cents.

Behind Any Move For Better Sport

Legislation enacted in 1951 authorized that 75 per cent of revenue from fish and game licenses be set aside annually for the purpose of bettering the sport—both from a management point of view and by improvement in fish and game stocks.

"As shown at the 1951 B.C. sportsmen's convention, we are behind a program that is designed to provide better sport for the hunters and fishermen today and tomorrow," said Ray Ritchie, president of the Victoria Fish and Game Protective Association. The convention approved increased license fees.

From our survey it appears that sportsmen figure the "new deal" for the department on fish-game revenue, along with the increased fees, should produce improvements in the two branches of the outdoor sport.

"And if we don't see that after a few years, they'll be hearing from us plenty," said one ardent follower of the sports—who will undoubtedly find plenty of backers.

The consensus in the sportsmen's ranks is: "Let's give it a try, and hope it will produce."

Great Career Ends With Retirement Of Stewart

CHICAGO, Feb. 13 (CP)—John (Black Jack) Stewart, one of the all-time iron men in the National Hockey League, Tuesday requested and received his unconditional release from Chicago Black Hawks.

The 35-year-old native of Pilot Mound, Minn., told Hawks president Bill Tobin he wants to look for a minor league managership.

In his 14 years as a pro hockey defensive star, Stewart competed in 798 games, 32 in Stanley Cup competition and 716 in regular-scheduled matches. He played 12 years with Detroit-Red Wings before joining Chicago. He was chosen six times on all-star league teams.

Stewart suffered a back injury a year ago and was in hospital for two months. He spent two weeks in hospital at the start of the current season recovering from a brain concussion.

The 35-year-old 180-pounder became one of the hardest hitting defencemen in the league after he broke in with Detroit in 1938-39. He formed the backbone of the Red Wing defense in the post-war years and built up a reputation as one of the hardest men to get by.

The Red Wings traded Stewart to the Black Hawks in 1950 in a five-for-four player swap. Black Jack suffered a split disk in his spine in the 1950-51 season and was able to play in only 26 games.

This year he was expected to be a powerhouse on the Chicago defense and counted on to pull the Hawks out of last place. But he never was able to regain his old form.

In an interview Jan. 15 coach Eddie Gottlieb hinted that Stewart's playing days were about ended when he said "this will be his last season."

All Serene On W.I.L. Ball Front

TACOMA, Wash., Feb. 13 (AP)—A meeting of Western International League baseball club owners scheduled to be held Wednesday in Seattle has been canceled, league president Robert Abel announced.

Abel added that Victoria's franchise—one of the subjects to be discussed—at the meeting would stay in Victoria, as the city had raised sufficient funds to be able to support it.

He said he had contacted the various owners regarding their objections to the proposed 1952 schedule and they had accepted his suggestions.

With these matters out of the way, there was no need for a meeting, Abel added.

He also said a disagreement about the league's player classification rule had been straightened out without the necessity of calling a meeting.

"I will make every effort to have the schedule ready for release before Washington's birthday," Abel declared.

MUSIAL GETS NEAT CHEQUE

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 13 (AP)—Stan Musial of St. Louis Cardinals Tuesday got his back pay for 1951—a cheque for $20,001.

The raise had been held up by the wage stabilization board which only recently gave permission to grant it. Redbird owner Fred Saigh said the raise actually was $25,000 but that basic withholding taxes had reduced it to $20,001. He indicated that with the boost, Stan's salary for last year was around $80,000, one of the highest in baseball.

WINTER GAMES OPEN

Canada Centre Of Attention

OSLO, Feb. 13 (CP)—Canadians moved centre and front on Norway's Olympic stage today.

One bowed in as the first racer who will open the 1952 winter games. The other is almost certain to bow out as a competitor.

Rhoda Wurtele Eaves, of Montreal, drew the No. 1 spot for the women's giant slalom, the ski opening event on the first day's program Thursday.

Engelbert Miller, of Edmonton, left winger on Canada's hockey team, awaited the almost sure decision that he is ineligible under Olympic rules.

The situation brings disappointment to both. For Rhoda, despite the honor as first skier down, it means she must break the trail, an unenviable assignment among skiers.

For Miller, it means, in all probability, a spectator's role while his teammates of the Edmonton Mercurys shoot for another Olympic championship for Canada. The eligibility question arose because of Miller having played a couple of seasons for Strathcona, a semi-pro team in British Columbia.

AGE-OLD RITUAL

The traditional ritual and ceremony that reach far back into Olympic history come into a modern setting again today. A gigantic relay of 160 men on skis began carrying the Olympic torch from the birthplace of modern skiing to the opening of the games in Oslo.

It looked, too, as if they will have some fresh snow to ski on before the end of the 170-mile journey.

SNOW FORECAST

The Oslo Weather Bureau gave a lift to the Olympic spirit by predicting snow in sizeable quantities for Southern Norway tonight.

But with loads of snow dumped on it and packed down, the special slalom course was reported in fair-to-good condition.

The official opening of the games will not take place until Friday morning when the Olympic torch is carried into Bislett Stadium and the Olympic fire is lighted above the traditional marathon gate.

Sterling Drive 'A Revolution'

OTTAWA, Feb. 13 (BUP).—Attempts to re-establish the pound sterling on its pedestal among world currencies were described by the United Kingdom information office here today as "a revolution."

The new Churchill government's drive meant more to Canadians than a reduction in British purchases or the need for more food parcels sent from this country because of "another twist of austerity's thumb-screw," the government information agency said.

While the Attlee government had tried to keep interest rates low and "disregard" the price system, the U.K.I.O. economic record said, the new government was determined to strengthen and stabilize Britain's currency.

"That is the revolution now going on in Britain," the U.K.I.O. newsletter said.

"In the post-war years, Britain has been an interesting study because she has been living an experiment of full employment policy, largely based on the economic theories of the late Lord Keynes and the assumption that unemployment might again be caused through people's lack of adequate spending power—conditions which have fortunately not arisen to test the adequacy of this new full employment machinery."

MADE SECONDARY

"To achieve their aim of a society free from the disgrace of idle men and idle acres, the former British government kept interest rates low and tried to disregard the price system. Money had to take a secondary place as a controller of economic life, of far less importance than a permit or a ration coupon. That is now changing," the economic record added. "Money—and more particularly the pound sterling—is being restored to serve all the three functions enumerated in economic text books—a means of exchange, a measure of value, and a store of future buying power."

With drastic depreciation of sterling in the post-war years, the U.K.I.O. said, sterling had been a "poor" measure of value and "an even worse" store of future buying power. Its value as a means of exchange was limited because of international convertibility restrictions.

As banker for the sterling area's supply of gold and dollars, Britain's position has been steadily worsening since the war, the information office said. By last June 30, gold and dollar reserves stood at £1,381,000,000, while liabilities were £4,168,000,000.

BALANCE CHANGES

"Before the war every inhabitant of the United Kingdom could be said to have, on an average, a claim of nearly £80 on the rest of the world. At the end of the war, that position had been reversed and every Briton owed the rest of the world £20."

"By June 30 last," the U.K.I.O. added, "as a result of the persistent balance-of-payments deficits incurred by Great Britain since the end of the war, the position had worsened further and the average external debt borne by every inhabitant of this country had risen to £55."

The information office said stern measures already had been taken by the Churchill government to put sterling "back on its pedestal of international respectability," and that further measures would be contained in the new British budget to be presented to parliament March 4.

Theatre Lecture Theme For Arts Centre Group

By AUDREY ST. D. JOHNSON

Theatre was the theme at the Moss Street Arts Centre Tuesday night. Specifically, writing for the theatre, both legitimate and radio. The lecturer was Ian Thorne, L.R.A.M., director, actor and writer of successful radio scripts and plays.

Thorne had prepared a stage and a radio script, each in two versions, illustrative of the wrong and the right way for a playwright to proceed.

The lecturer is young, dynamic, sincere; his enthusiasm is "burning bright." And for those reasons alone he commands the attention of his audience.

In addition, last night, he had with him a small group of skillful actors from the Victoria Theatre Guild who provided lively performances in illustration of the lecturer's points.

Bruce Banyard and Rikki Nickells demonstrated the wrong way to write a stage comedy about "Bill and Maisie." Thorne under-scored the errors with witty comments from the sidelines. This was followed by a highly entertaining "right" version, acted by Mrs. Nickells with Thorne.

For the illustration of a radio play, the lecturer used a fragment of his complete hour-long script on Richard Brinsley Sheridan. "The Last Days of Sheridan" is a tragedy which, in its "right" form, completely captured the imagination of the audience.

The actors, behind closed doors, spoke into a microphone; voices, music and sound being relayed through a loud speaker, so that the genuine effect of a broadcast play was obtained. Olive Keane and Bruce Banyard were extremely effective. John Keane rounded out with small bits and supplied sound effects.

Thorne covered the various technical problems of the dramatist in somewhat general terms, but with humor, spiced with practical craftsmanship.

To the 100-odd members of the audience, it was welcome news when curator Colin Graham announced at the end of the evening, that Thorne is to give a four-lecture series in approximately two weeks' time, on various aspects of the drama.

New-Type Screen Gives Movie Patrons A Break

By RON BAIRD
 Someone has finally come along and given the end man in a movie theatre line-up an even break for his money.
 And take it from customer-conscious B. A. "Bert" Nixon—owner-operator of the Fox Theatre here—his new cycloramic screen is going to be just the thing for the guy that gets stuck down front and way over to the left side of the 429-seat quonset-type movie house.
 The new screen, installed over the week-end and the "first of its kind on the west coast"—will knock out any distortion otherwise seen when a patron is sitting off-centre in the theatre.
 The cycloramic knocks out glare and the 30-inch "wings" that jut out the side of the Fox's 14-foot by 10½-foot screen give the impression that the movie characters just drift off into space in the same manner that the eye pictures a scene.
 Added, too, is a third-dimensional quality, giving added depth to a film.
 Made in Seattle, the new, fire-proofed screen is broadcloth.

Dominion-Wide Pension Alters Company Plans

Canadian Industries Ltd. May Set Pattern For Many Private Superannuation Schemes

The new federal pension scheme, giving $40 a month to every Canadian over 70 years of age, will result in far-reaching changes in the existing pension schemes of business firms, banks and other institutions throughout Canada, officials of trust companies in Victoria told the Times Tuesday.

One of the biggest companies in Canada, with thousands of older people on its payroll, Canadian Industries Limited, has already announced a revised pension plan.

Trust company management men, who specialize in administering pension plans for private and public firms, said that the new C.I.L. plan probably indicates the general direction of revised pension schemes in Canada.

The prospective changes mostly call for integrating the existing company plans, which apply to branches all across Canada, with the new government old age pension plan. In the case of C.I.L., which has 8,500 employees at its branches from coast to coast, the revised pension plan now provides a level lifetime retirement income after age 65 for employees with at least 15 years' service.

The amount of retirement income is determined by multiplying the number of years of pension service by 1 per cent of the average monthly earnings during the last 10 years of employment, plus $25 per month.

The general effect of the changes envisaged will be to enable an earlier retirement, say at age 65, with the same amount that had been previously calculated for retirement at 70 years, in the opinions of administrative officials here.

The association voted to direct its civil defense committee to co-operate with B.C. civil defense committees in an effort to get a definite ruling from Ottawa. Another resolution said members of the B.C.A.B. endorsed the principle that radio stations should have an active editorial policy. This resolution will be submitted to the annual convention of the Western Association of Broadcasters.

Even Sailor Needs Ticket For Deep-Sea Ship's Berth

After April 1 able seamen in OS $170 a month. The new regulations do not affect coast-wise seamen.

At present, a man signing on a deep-sea ship must carry with him all his papers—including discharges from previous ships—to prove his right to the "AB" rating—and the difference of about $15 a month in pay for an ordinary seaman.

Under the new plan, reported by Capt. Ronald Newall, Victoria Harbor and shipping master, the AB simply shows his ticket when he signs on.

Seamen who have served at least three years on deck in sea-going ships prior to March 15, will receive their tickets without examination. After that date, men must prove three years' deck service, and also sit for their tickets, under the regular examination of masters and mates.

Department of Transport will also establish two schools for AB's, in conjunction with the masters and mates schools at Vancouver and Halifax.

A Canadian sea-going AB receives about $185 a month; an

Crowned Heads, World Leaders Flock To London To Pay Homage To King

LONDON, Feb. 13 (AP).—Kings, queens and government notables of half the world headed for this mourning capital today to pay homage at the funeral of King George VI.

Clarlidge, the Ritz and others of London's top 10 hotels opened their royal suites for an influx unparalleled in the 15 years since the late King's coronation.

All Europe's reigning monarchs will be at the funeral Friday except 21-year-old King Baudouin of the Belgians. His determination to stay in Brussels has thrown his country into political upheaval.

One of the first to reach London, Norway's 79-year-old King Haakon, a close friend of British royalty, arrived Monday and is staying at Buckingham Palace. He alone of current continental royalty attended the funeral of two other British Kings—Edward VII in 1910 and George V in 1936.

Suites at Clarlidge which cost $50 a day are ready for King Gustav and Queen Louise of Sweden, King Paul of Greece, King Frederik and Queen Ingrid of Denmark, and Queen Juliana and Prince Bernhard of the Netherlands.

London police and secret service authorities have prepared their biggest post-war security check to protect guests.

President Truman is sending State Secretary Dean Acheson as his representative. Acheson is due here by air today.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower flies here Thursday from his Paris headquarters to represent the North Atlantic Treaty powers.

Moscow will be represented by the Soviet ambassador in London, Georgi Zarubin.

Egypt, apparently on the road to better relations with Britain now that the Suez Canal zone is quiet, is sending a three-man court mission.

Iran, another nation disputing with Britain, will be represented by the Shah's brother, Prince Ali Reza Pahlavi.

President Vincent Auriol, Premier Edgar Faure and Foreign Minister Robert Schuman are coming from France.

West Germany's representative will be Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

Yachtsman From Island Saved In U.S.

COOS BAY, Ore., Feb. 12 (AP).—The U.S. Coast Guard today rescued the sailing yacht "Te Hongi" and its one-man crew, Jim Squires, 28, who arrived here two weeks ago from Victoria, was drifting helplessly on the Te Hongi toward rocks at the entrance to Coos Bay when the Coast Guard saw his plight. A line was thrown aboard when he was only 50 feet from the rocks. The Coast Guard then towed him to safety.

Squires explained his companion left him at Coos Bay, and he set out alone Saturday. At sea his auxiliary engine broke down. He battled a week-end storm for two days and finally decided to head back to Coos Bay. Just as he was about to enter the harbor, the wind died and he began to drift toward the rocks.

Squires said he would remain in Coos Bay some time before resuming his pleasure trip to California and on to the South Seas.

Pensioners To Honor Memory Of Late King

Victoria branch, Canadian Pensioners' Association, will hold a short ceremony Friday morning at 10 in honor of the late King George.

Two minutes silence will be observed and a bugler will sound Last Post and Reveille. Members of the 29th and 31st Battalions have been invited.

Delay Seen In Bookmaker Trial

VANCOUVER, Feb. 13 (CP).—Defense lawyers Tuesday at the opening session of the bookmaking conspiracy trial of 27 persons made a demand which the prosecution said would force a two-week adjournment.

Mr. Justice Norman Whittaker said he will rule Wednesday on whether the Crown must produce particulars of the conspiracy charge demanded by the defense.

The nearly 400 prospective jurors cooled their heels during two hours of argument today between the defense and the prosecution.

John L. Farris, one of 12 defense lawyers, said the conspiracy counts against the 26 men and one woman "are confined strictly to the language of the Criminal Code."

Argentine Radicals Report Many Arrests

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 13 (AP).—Argentina's Radical Party charged Monday that more than 100 of its members were arrested since Feb. 3 and in a statement pleaded that they should not be tortured. It was the first public written word from the party on a series of arrests carried out by President Juan Peron's government to break up a reported plot.

Saanich Sets Logging Truck Bond At $250

Central Saanich council will require all logging trucks operating within municipal boundaries to post a $250 bond with the municipality.

The bonds will provide security against road damage and infractions of loading regulations. Council will also investigate enforcement of load limits.

The decision was made by council Tuesday night when works superintendent T. G. Michell complained of damage to roads by heavy logging trucks.

Donald E. C. Anderson, Victoria, was appointed municipal prosecutor and solicitor.

Council will inform R. E. Brethour, Sidney, that as owner of a gravel pit received from Saanich following secession, it must be notified of negotiations for sale of gravel from the pit.

Reeve Sydney Pickles said he understood Brethour contemplated sale of gravel from the pit to a Victoria contracting firm.

A negotiating meeting will be held in Vancouver, Thursday, to consider the demand of B.C. pile drivers for a 50-cent-an-hour pay increase.

The meeting will be between officials of the Pile Drivers and Wooden Bridge-men's Union (A.F.L.) and representatives of the pile drivers' section of the General Contracting Association, which represents about 18 firms.

Result of the meeting will affect about 75 men working in Victoria.

At present, basic rate for pile drivers is $2.05 an hour. The existing union contract expires April 1.

Up-land carpenters have notified employers that, like their counterparts in Victoria and Duncan, they will seek a new wage rate of $2.50 an hour when negotiations begin shortly.

Present rate in Nanaimo and main centres north is $2 an hour. In Victoria and Duncan the current hourly rate is $1.75.

Negotiation meetings have already commenced in Victoria for lower-land carpenters. Meetings will be scheduled for Courtenay to deal with up-land workmen.

2 Fishermen Escape Death In Fast Tide

Special to the Times
CAMPBELL RIVER, Feb. 13—Two Vancouver men, lately sure candidates for Davy Jones' locker, are still congratulating themselves on successfully outwitting Seymour Narrows' tides three times.

They are Fred R. Doucet, 871 Granville, and Harold J. Eamorf, 4404 Commercial Drive, whose routine fishing trip that started Saturday was almost their last.

They were swept through the swirling, boiling narrows Saturday afternoon when the engine of their 14-foot boat failed, but arrived safely at Brown's Bay and spent the night there.

Sunday they repaired the motor and set sail again, only to encounter a 14-knot tide, bubbling eddies, thrashing white water, and another engine failure.

They fought their way through the waters that have taken scores of lives, past treacherous Ripple Rock, and headed the boat successfully on the shore of the narrows.

Their third try, on Monday was uneventful, and as they approached Duncan Bay they met an R.C.M.P. launch starting off on a search for them.

Both are employed by B.C. Bridge and Dredge Ltd. at Duncan Bay.

BACHELOR GETS POINT

New Valentine Day Cards Booby-Trapped For Unwary

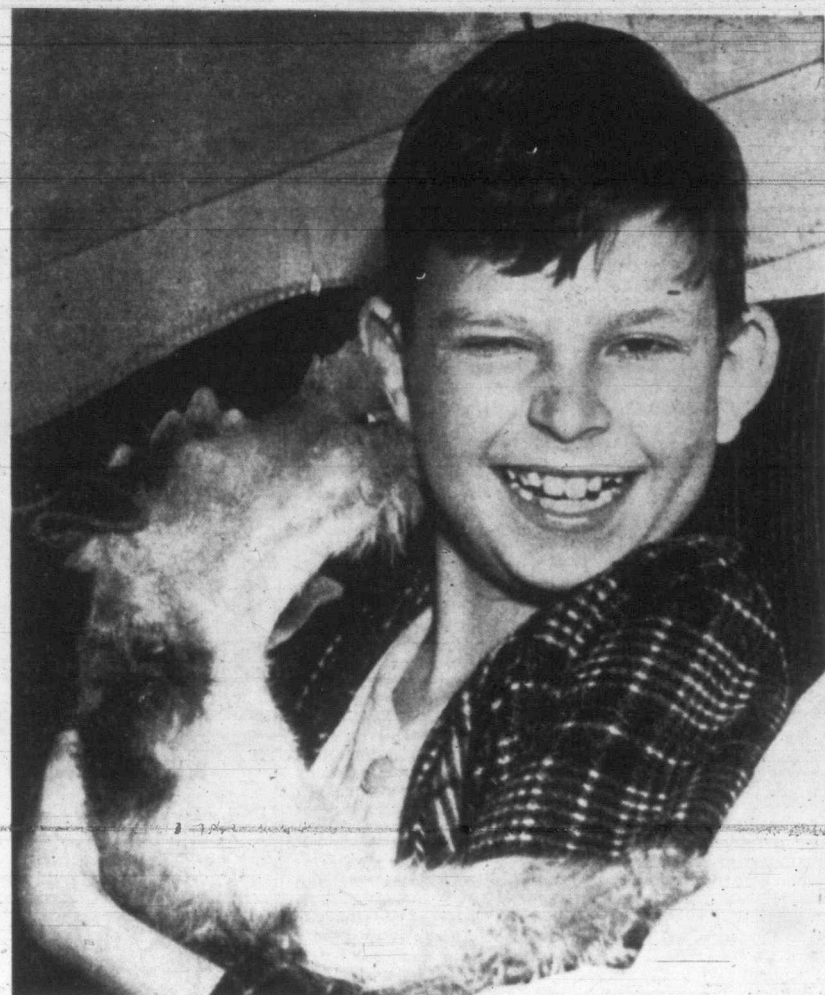

By R. E. PORTER
The smug, self-sufficient bachelor looked in his mail-box, pulled out a couple of letters and opened one of them.

Then he jumped with alarm. He had been stung by a Valentine Day card with a built-in needle.

Add to make matters worse, the card read: "I sure got stung with you."

But while our bachelor friend was jumping up and down with anger, thousands of other people were getting sentimental.

Said a salesgirl in a local store: "This year is one of the biggest for sentimental cards. I guess it's the Korean war and the fact that there are so many servicemen here."

His scrapbook was tops.

Seven-Year-Old Winner Of Times' Prize Puppy

By RON BAIRD

Seven-year-old George Murdoch ran into the living room and shouted:

"Mummy, we won Kneehi."

But his 10-year-old brother, Alex, was one jump ahead of him. Cuddled in his arms was the top prize in the Times Kneehi scrapbook contest—the safety pup's seven-week-old cousin.

A grade five student at Willows School, Alex worked hard and long to turn out the smartest and best scrapbook in the contest.

Then, after turning it in, Alex got the mumps.

Tuesday, sitting on the living room couch wrapped up warmly in a dressing gown, Alex figured it was just about the happiest day in his life.

KISS FOR MASTER

Planting a big kiss on Alex's face, the pup wriggled about happily as he surveyed his new home, 2240 Beach Drive. Across the street was Willows Park and a few hundred yards from that was a big beach with lots of sand to play in.

Back of the Murdoch house is a big play-yard, and according to Mrs. Murdoch half of Willows School is going to turn up there to see Kneehi's cousin.

Adventurer's Vessel Saved By Coastguard

Lone Victorian Near Disaster In Oregon

Former B.C. golf champion Jim Squires of Victoria, out to see the world aboard the schooner Te Hongi, was rescued at Coos Bay, Ore., Tuesday by the U.S. Coast Guard.

Squires left here Jan. 17, with Jacques Markwalder, former owner of the schooner, on a cruise to the South Seas.

Two weeks ago he put into Coos Bay, and when he left again Saturday, he sailed alone. At sea his engine broke down, and when he attempted to put back into port, he was in danger of drifting on the rocks guarding the harbor entrance.

A Coast Guard craft got a line aboard when he was within 50 feet of rocks and towed him in. Squires says he will remain in Coos Bay "for some time" before resuming his southward cruise.

with swings and a model boat for the neighborhood kids to play in.

PRINCIPAL HAPPY

Over at Willows School, principal R. T. Kipling was as happy as a teacher could be when he heard that one of his pupils had won the top prize in the scrapbook contest.

It was a hard job for the judges to decide who the winner was going to be.

Hundreds of scrapbooks were turned into The Victoria Times. The contest was so close that extra prizes had to be added for the second best books.

Alex Murdoch won his puppy through hard work.

His mother said he kept his scrapbook up to date every day. On the night before he turned it in, it was midnight when he went to bed.

For a 10-year-old with mumps, the puppy was the best medicine a doctor could prescribe.

Higher Benefits Believed Sloan's Recommendation

MAYOR JOINS LEGAL FIGHT WITH B.C.E.

Council Not Place For Hearing, Claim

A 40-minute legal wrangle preceded hearing of B.C. Electric Co. representatives at a special City Council meeting today on the company's move for higher bus fares.

W. Arnott, vice-president, appeared to present the company's proposal for increased fares due to increased operating costs.

Before council referred the company's brief to City Council transportation committee and through it to the Greater Victoria transportation committee, peppy debate developed between Mayor Claude Harrison and Ald. William Pinfold.

At another stage Arnott and City Solicitor Arthur Patton tangled verbally.

The mayor, after reading sections of the 1947 franchise agreement between the city and company, contended the company should have gone to the Greater Victoria transportation committee, not the council. He was backed by Patton.

They contended council could hear representatives out of courtesy; but "without prejudice and only academically—not as the body properly authorized to hear it."

"I think we are wasting time," said Ald. Pinfold, when the debate developed.

NO WASTE OF TIME

"It's not a case of wasting this council's time," said Mayor Harrison. "I am trying to get council to do things legally by the agreements you have signed."

"Would you care to withdraw your remark?" he asked Pinfold.

"No sir," the latter replied.

The 47 franchise gave power for the creation of a commission to co-ordinate transit matters, under statutory authority, the mayor said. Arnott said no such action had been taken to date.

"Mr. Arnott's entirely wrong," said Patton. "We have statutory authority."

"I don't know why Mr. Arnott wants to change the policy," he said. "If you come to each municipality, how are you going to co-ordinate things?"

Arnott, who read the company's brief, replied: "We are following exactly the same steps as last time. We came to council and read our letter. Council, in its wisdom, referred the matter to the Greater Victoria transportation committee."

"There's no confusion," said Harrison. "I am not going to shorten anything this important."

CALLS BOOST SHOCK

"This increase is going to be a shock to the poorer people," Ald. Pinfold called for a public hearing. Unable to attend today's meeting owing to a severe cold Ald. Waldo Skillings urged by letter multiple zone fares, so that people riding three blocks would not have to pay the same as those riding three miles.

Arnott said that would mean still higher fares for those in the outer areas, than already proposed. Pinfold feared the effect on the downtown business district, if city people only had a five-cent fare, but those in Saanich, 10 or more.

When the company sought an increase in electric light rates a year ago, it stated the signing of a two-year wage agreement with transit workers was one of the immediate reasons. Ald. Robert Macmillan told council.

He asked in view of that, why an increase in transit before the two years were up. Arnott replied: "The spiral is still with us."

"If material costs and labor costs keep rising then we'll no doubt have to come back next year. There is no way to avoid it."

Police Report Metal Bar Used As Assault Weapon

The victim of a brutal assault and robbery early this morning, 22-year-old Miss Rose Hook, 94 Linden, was reported in good condition at Jubilee Hospital at press time today.

City policemen Sgt. Walter Andrews and Constable James Barker report that Miss Hook was asleep in her basement apartment when her assailant entered, slugged her over the head with an iron bar, and left with her purse containing $35 and personal articles.

Roy W. Baker, resident in another section of the building, told police that assault and robbery occurred around 5.

He called police who took Miss Hook to hospital. She was suffering from two deep cuts on the head. One cut required three stitches.

Police investigations revealed that the robber entered the basement through unlocked garage doors. He had secured a metal bar, used for shaking the furnace ashes down, before entering the basement living room.

Miss Hook was asleep when her assailant entered.

Miss Hook told the investigating officers that she screamed when she was struck. Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Daniels, of the same premises, told police they heard no scream.

Baker, however, told police that a box of tools owned by him and worth between $80 and $100 is missing from the basement.

Police reported telephone wires to the basement apartment were cut as well as wires of a buzzer between the suite and the upstairs of the house.

NO IMMEDIATE MOVE BY LOCAL LAWYERS FOR FIVE-DAY WEEK

Although there is considerable interest in Victoria legal circles in the proposal of Ontario Bar Association to establish a five-day week, no action to that end is likely at present.

The Ontario Association wants the provincial government to designate Saturdays "non-judicial" days, like Sundays, and the executive of the Vancouver Bar Association is now studying the proposal.

Howard J. Harman, president of the Victoria Bar Association, says no definite action is contemplated here. Some law offices now "stagger" staffs so that all have a certain number of days off.

Law offices cannot shut down completely as long as legal papers can be served on Saturdays.

Railway Men Demand Full Session Of House

Provincial Cabinet Urged To Consider Amendments To Vital B.C. Legislation

Representatives of 25,000 railway workers today urged the provincial Cabinet to hold a full session of the Legislature and enact amendments to the Workmen's Compensation Act, Hospital Insurance Act and the Industrial Conciliation and Arbitration Act.

Headed by Henry Elliott, chairman of the joint legislative committee of the Standard Railway Organizations, the group presented a lengthy brief to the cabinet covering a myriad of subjects.

The delegation was to meet Attorney General Gordon Wishart this afternoon to discuss the Doukhobor problem. The group is particularly interested in the safe operation of trains on the Kootenay division of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

The delegation reviewed presentations already made to special inquiries which were held on the Workmen's Compensation Act, hospital insurance and the I.C.A. Act.

The group also recommended increased mothers' allowances; an automobile accident insurance rate similar to Saskatchewan's; compulsory mechanical inspection of all vehicles; coloring of margarine; by the manufacturer; revamping of divorce laws to allow a married person to obtain a divorce when either party has been committed to a mental home with no hope of release; removal of sales tax on meals.

The delegation voiced opposition to any plan for unrestricted immigration.

Craigflower Women's Institute Valentine's Tea, which was to have been held Thursday, has been postponed to Feb. 20, at 2:30, in View Royal Hall.

Wanted: A former executive member of the S.P.C.A., she said today that damage to the bird population here by cats is "open to question."

"I consider that the number of birds here is increasing," said Mrs. Barr.

She said there was no reason to conclude that cats and dogs were to blame for destruction of birds. "Mr. Heywood's statement makes me mad," Mrs. Barr added.

Won't Blame Cats For Bird Killing

Mrs. James Barr, Portage Road, has termed "propaganda" a statement by ex-S.P.C.A. president E. P. Heywood that Victoria's bird population is decreasing because of dogs and cats being allowed to run wild.

A former executive member of the S.P.C.A., she said today that damage to the bird population here by cats is "open to question."

"I consider that the number of birds here is increasing," said Mrs. Barr.

She said there was no reason to conclude that cats and dogs were to blame for destruction of birds. "Mr. Heywood's statement makes me mad," Mrs. Barr added.

LOOSE BELT MAY EXPLAIN FATAL CRASH

Pat Bay's Plane Owner Testifies

A combination of unusual circumstances might explain the aircraft crash Saturday at Sidney that took the lives of Gerry Ralph, 17, pilot, and his friend, Fred Corbett, 16, making his first flight.

Robert A. F. Miller, owner of the light plane and manager of Victoria Flying Club, testified at a coroner's inquest today at Haywards that a loose seat belt might explain the accident.

Admitting his explanation was conjecture, he said that if the seat belt was loose, and if the plane nosed up, it might respond to the pilot's returning it to level flight suddenly enough to lift the pilot from his seat.

COULD BE DAZED

"If the belt was loose and this happened," he said, "the pilot could be thrown against a bar above him and be dazed sufficiently to lose control."

One witness, Cpl. Peter B. Smith, R.C.M.P., said as he watched the plane in level flight it actually appeared to tip up a bit before it went into a nose dive.

Coroner's jury returned a verdict of accidental death, with no blame attached to anyone and no riders.

Miller stated the aircraft, a single-engine Cessna 120, would nose dive only if the control stick were held forward or if all rear control surfaces were missing. It was in good mechanical condition, he said.

H. T. Ralph, father of Gerry Ralph, testified that his son was in perfect health.

Witnesses who agreed that the plane was in level flight, then suddenly nosed down, were William MacNutt, Clair Downey and Clifford Carbol.

Jury foreman was G. F. Gilbert, B.C. government pilot.

Oregon Lumber Output Seen Record High

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 13 (Special).—On the basis of production and orders for January, Douglas fir sawmills are apparently headed for another record-breaking year.

In the first four weeks of 1952, despite some freezing weather, western Oregon and Washington fir mills produced 803,850,000 board feet, according to Harris E. Smith, secretary of the West Coast Lumbermen's Association. This is 98,000,000 feet below output for January, 1951.

Multiple-License System 'Absurd' Counsel Argues

A law that requires a person in business, fully licensed in his own municipality, to pay a trades license in every municipality his business might take him to is "absurd," it was stated in city police court today.

Opinion was expressed by lawyer William H. M. Haldane.

He is defending Harold Atwell, taxi business operator known as the "Newport Taxi."

Atwell has been charged with operating a taxi within the boundaries of Victoria without a trades license. He operates from Oak Bay.

If the average man in business, licensed in his own municipality, was charged additional license fees every time he crossed another municipal border — well, he'd be financially finished in no time, Haldane contended.

He illustrated by words the heavy financial burden that would be thrown on the businessman's shoulders, for instance, in making a trip from Oak Bay to Alberni.

"Can you imagine the terrific cost annually it would be to a firm, such as a taxi company?" Haldane asked Magistrate H. C. Hall.

Charge against Atwell arose after one of his taxis, licensed in Oak Bay, entered the city to pick up a fare at the C.P.R. docks — by telephoned request — and was let out at an address still in the city.

Prosecutor James J. Proudfoot did not argue the merits of the Municipal Act on this question, but pointed out that the act called for a license fee to be charged against anyone taking his business across a boundary into another municipality.

Mr. Haldane was intimating that this was not the "meaning" of the act.

He suggested that such a law had terrific ramifications that would involve anyone in ordinary business and the "professional" world if operated as the Municipal Act reads.

The case was remanded to Feb. 26 for judgment.

No Price War Here, But Trade-In Allowance Helps

There is no such thing as a price war on heavy electrical appliances in Victoria.

Nearly all nationally-branded stoves, refrigerators, washing machines and vacuum cleaners are offered at list price.

However, local retailers are being remarkably generous in the matter of trade-in allowances.

For instance, one firm offers $125 trade-in allowance on your old ice-box or refrigerator—regardless of age, make, or condition. Another will give you $15 for your old broom—regardless of age, make, or condition—against the purchase of a $69.50 vacuum cleaner.

A shopper in one large downtown store, when offered $150 for his old stove on a new, de-luxe electric job, confessed he didn't own a stove.

"Tell you what I'll do," said the salesman. "I'll let you have a hot plate for $5, and then take that as your trade-in."

If the trend continues, it is not unlikely that some enterprising merchant will offer a new kitchen stove with a $100 allowance on a used kitchen match—regardless of age, make, or condition.

In fact, one Vancouver firm has already achieved "reduction ad absurdum." An advertisement offers a $399.50 refrigerator (list price) with a trade-in allowance of $133.50 for "your old water glass, mop, broom, or what-have-you."

The trade-in trend has been developing across Canada and the United States in recent months, and is not regarded favorably by manufacturers, who forecast no drastic reductions in wholesale prices.

One manufacturer's representatives explained the trend this way: "Dealers are playing with their discounts. They are endeavoring to build volume with fantastic trade-ins. In some cases, they are cutting their margin so fine that only tremendous volume will enable them to show even a small profit."

"And the manufacturer is faced with ever-increasing steel restrictions which make production in volume more and more difficult."

Peel Off Paint That Hits Window Pane By Mistake!

By PENNY SAVER

With Spring just around the corner, you surely must be contemplating taking a can of paint and doing a touch-up on "ye old homestead"—which has weathered the winter.

Gracious! We think we take a beating during the cold months, but what on earth must our poor homes do, shivering out in the biting winds.

We don't half appreciate them. But if we're wise we'll realize that they can't go on taking this abuse without a little reformation—namely a coat of paint.

"Wonderful idea," you say. So, you rush around and get yourself a can of paint, a brush and a ladder. After a mad scramble you find yourself on the top of the ladder and slapping paint in all directions.

This is fine until you reach the windows. Then the fun begins. Before you know it your sparkling window panes are touched with an irregular frame of paint.

Application Can Also Be Permanent

Hey there, mind your language. Before you go any farther I'd better tell you about a dandy solution that you brush on the glass where you think it may be attacked by paint and then peel off when the coat is clear or in other words—when you have stopped flinging paint around.

This solution is 69 cents for a four-ounce bottle and $1.29 for double that quantity.

As I said before, when this solution has dried on your window it can be peeled off. But also, if you care to put a neat edge around the glass panes and leave it there, it will make a permanent moisture seal and prevent the paint from chipping around the edges as it so often does.

With the turn of the season though you will probably find it most useful as a means of protecting the glass from paint so that you don't have to go around when you have finished the job and scrape it off with a razor blade.

Leap Year Inspires Many Valentines To Set The Mood For Further Romance

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—"Roses are red, violets are blue. Leap Year's on, and I want You."

If this isn't a warning to the happy bachelor, he's apt to find himself a Valentine victim, who didn't have enough foresight to take to the hills while he still had time.

Feminine initiative being what

Since frilly, fuzzy valentines of the period 1900-10 were usually made by hand, a fellow had to be definitely smitten before he undertook such a task.

It is, a record-breaking number of Valentines are expected to be sent tomorrow, and there's little doubt that all sorts of follow-through is being prodigiously planned.

The 1952 Valentines, with their curtains of lace, tiny pressed flowers and scented satin puffs (all touches of the nostalgic "good old days") have definitely been created with the women in mind.

And, frankly, they may prove to be too much for the stronger sex.

If proof is necessary for the skeptics, take a look at history. The whole business of St. Valentine's Day started because of a young Roman priest who was to be beheaded on Feb. 14, 270 A.D., for refusing to renounce Christianity.

In prison, on the eve of his execution, he wrote a farewell letter to console the jailer's blind daughter, signing it "From Your Valentine."

This act of kindness to a little girl who had befriended him, established Valentine's Day as an occasion for exchanging gifts of friendship.

The Romans, however, had been celebrating Feb. 15 for several centuries as the Feast of Lupercalia, dedicated to the pastoral god, Lupercus, and the goddess of love, Juno.

As a part of the gay festivities, Roman maidens placed their names in an urn set up in the public square, and courageous bachelors were allowed to draw one name each to determine their "blind dates" for the year.

Eventually, because of pressure from the Christian Church, which felt the Romans were up to no good, the two holidays were merged, and thought of as an occasion for remembering old friendships.

Dan Cupid was not to be outdone. Sweetheart Valentines began appearing in about the year 1400 A.D. At first, to elude vigilant fathers, they were hidden in hollow trees that served as trysting places.

Usually these love messages were anonymous—for safety's sake. Sometimes they were left on a lovely lady's doorstep by a bashful suitor who knocked and then promptly ran away.

Valentines had pretty rough

Valentine cards were taken pretty seriously back in the 1880's. Gay numbers such as this one often cost as much as thirty dollars.

going in the years that followed, but they always emerged victorious. Without sufficient evidence, it is difficult to say whether the women or the men were responsible.

In this year of the quest, however, many a woman may wish that the olden days, when Valentines came to be considered equivalent to a proposal of marriage, might be revived.

There's little hope for this. Modern man, alas, has been given too much freedom.

To protect the timid woman who may feel reluctant to express her sentiments too freely, many 1952 Valentines "pop the question" in a whimsical way. After all, you can overdo a good thing. But whether serious or casual, men who receive Valentines had better make it a point to read between the lines. There's where the trap may lie.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

If You're Forever Tired, Do Something About It

All human beings become tired, that is all but those who seem to be human dynamos. Too often the fatigue falls unexpectedly and permanently on their faces. Some fatigue following work is natural but many persons are haunted by persistent and abnormal fatigue and yet take it for granted as a part of living.

There are numerous kinds of weariness. There is lack of pep which is the result of some systemic or organic trouble. There is the fatigue which follows an illness before you have had time to build the vital forces back to par.

Then there is the kind which results from muscular exertion without adequate opportunity for recovery, repair, and the abolition of waste poisons. There is the exhausted feeling which sometimes follows hard, long-drawn-out mental work.

However, the most important kind and the one which haunts most people comes from nervous exhaustion. The modern concept is that hard work never hurt anyone. It is the accompanying emotional factors and the strains and stresses of hurry, pressure and worry. These, plus boredom and maladjustment to ones surroundings, can give you a backache, make you break out in a rash, give you indigestion and pull your facial contour toward the floor.

If you are abnormally tired at the end of a day and a short rest period, a relaxing warm bath, or a little nap do not return you to normal, then you should take this condition seriously. You should do so in order to enjoy life more and as preventive medicine.

There are so many factors which enter into more-than-should-be fatigue. First you might investigate your health habits. If a change here does not bring results you should see your physician for a checkup. Whatever the cause, do some-

Reports Of 60th Year Show Y.W.C.A. Work Has Much Increased In Scope

Speaking at annual meeting of the Y.W.C.A. board of directors, yesterday evening, Miss Christina Gardiner, executive director, gave a resume of the year's activities. Miss Gardiner spoke of the 48 resident girls, the farthest away being from Ontario and the nearest from Mill Bay; the 125 persons who received individual counseling during the year; the 475 services and the 205 phone calls made in connection with this counseling. Calls had been made by a committee of "Y" assistants on 87 families of newcomers and work among new Canadians is continuing, she said.

The Travelers' Aid desk at the docks was especially busy. Miss Gardiner reported, during August alone 1,580 persons receiving 1,013 services.

During the year 1,968 transient guests were welcomed at the "Y" and 36,539 meals were served in the dining room.

Speaking of the program department, Miss Gardiner listed 19 clubs in action during 1951 with 869 members; 17 interest groups with membership of 250, and all co-ordinated by the program council and backed by a program committee.

Treasurer's report showed revenue for the year of $24,956.27, which included grants from Community Chest, the province and the city amounting to $19,639.90; dining room sales, less expenses, $389; house room rentals, less expenses, $3,890.98, and clubroom dues, $367.12.

Disbursements were $24,584.94, leaving a balance of $371.33.

In her president's report, Mrs. R. E. Foster spoke of work done

World Council At Beirut

Following annual meeting in the Y.W.C.A. yesterday evening Dr. Olga Jardine gave an address on the World Y.W.C.A. meeting in Lebanon.

Sketching the background of the country, her arrival at the airport at Beirut and the trip by motor bus to Beit-Mary, high in the Lebanon hills above Beirut, where the sessions were held, Dr. Jardine gave a vivid picture of the gathering.

She described the different nationalities of delegates, their colorful costumes, native tongues; the many social affairs arranged for pleasure of the delegates. She also reported on the more serious business of a world gathering. Lebanon was chosen for the meeting, Dr. Jardine said, for four reasons. First, because it was the land of the Bible, a land of many religions and of the birth of civilization; second, because it was a central spot for converging from the 63 countries in which the Y.W.C.A. operates; third, because in the past three years there had been a definite increase in interest in the Y.W.C.A. in the Middle East, and fourth, because of the 850,000 refugees housed in camps and displaced there.

"We are vitally concerned in work with displaced persons," Dr. Jardine said, "and it was well that we should see the sad conditions in which they must live until help comes for them."

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. Foster and thanked by Mrs. Campbell Small.

Mrs. R. E. Foster, left, president of the Y.W.C.A. board of directors and Miss Christina Gardiner, executive secretary, arrange candles on a birthday cake for the 60th anniversary party of the local "Y," held yesterday. Mrs. Foster was re-elected head of the board for 1952 in annual meeting preceding the party.

by members of the executive, the board and the staff.

Mayor Claude Harrison brought greetings from the City of Victoria. Dean G. R. Calvert led the devotional period and Miss Ann Pomeroy, the scripture lesson.

Vocal numbers were given by a trio from the "Y" Glee Club, Misses Jean Kerr, Dorothy-Mae Charles and Beverley Heinen, with Miss Vivian Trimble at the piano.

Mrs. Foster was re-elected president of the board for 1952. Other officers are Mrs. H. J. Seatts, vice-president; Mrs. William Blair, second vice-president; Mrs. Brian Hunnings, recording secretary; Miss Agnes Hood, corresponding; Mrs. P. J. Mulcahy, treasurer.

Open Road For Genius Among Students Urged

The present-day system of education should make some provision for developing the brilliant student to his full capacity, Rev. C. W. Sowby told members of the Canadian Club at a Monday luncheon meeting in the Empress Hotel.

Sowby, who is principal of Upper Canada College, Toronto, one of Canada's oldest private schools for boys, maintained that more was being done for backward and poor students than for those with extraordinary abilities.

"We must be prepared to deal with the genius when we find him," the speaker declared. "We must not allow him to fall into mediocrity."

The brilliant student, he said, should work apart from the students who are just average. He should learn to work in a different way and should be left to do many things for himself. "He does not need spoon feeding," the quiet-mannered clergyman maintained. "But he should learn early self-discipline of work so that when he goes to university he does not waste his time."

Many average students, the speaker observed, only worked when forced. These, he said, were the ones who crammed for

by Thornton W. Burgess

Timmy the Flying Squirrel and his family and friends, living in the big apartment tree in the Green Forest, had thought that things were just about as bad as they could be when Killy the Sparrow Hawk moved into a big empty apartment.

But it hadn't turned out badly at all. You see, Killy did his hunting in the daytime and slept at night. Timmy and his friends slept in the day and were abroad at night. So they never saw Killy and Killy never saw them.

It was Timmy who discovered that Killy had moved into an upper apartment. And it was Timmy who later made the discovery that someone had moved into the big empty lower apartment. It had been empty for a long time. Timmy had happened to go out extra early one night. Rather it was late afternoon just after Killy had gone into his apartment for the night. When after a few minutes he returned, he landed as usual at the foot of the big apartment tree and started to run up past that big lower apartment which had been empty for so long. He was so used to passing that doorway that he merely gave it a glance. That glance made him drop the acorn he was carrying, and he dodged around on the back side of that tree as fast as his small legs could take him. When he had glanced at that doorway he had looked straight into a pair of yellow eyes. They belonged to Shooky, the Screech Owl.

Hurriedly Timmy scrambled up to his own apartment to tell Mrs. Timmy the awful news that Shooky the Screech Owl was in that lower apartment.

Now Timmy's apartment was directly above the one Shooky was in, but quite high above. Timmy didn't have to wait long. As soon as the Black Shadows creeping through the Green Forest brought the dusk with them, Shooky left his doorway and started out on his nightly hunt. Timmy waited only long enough for Shooky to get out of sight, then hurried to tell all his neighbors the dreadful news.

Doors Opened For Children

Children accompanied by an adult will be admitted free to the Audubon film-lecture at the S. J. Willis School next Monday, it was announced today by Mrs. James Hobson, president of the Victoria Natural History Society.

The visiting lecturer will be Leonard Hall, of Missouri, who has written several nature articles for The Saturday Evening Post, Life, Collier's and Field and Stream. He will present his film "Our National Parks," featuring desert and mountain flowers and wild animals.

Mrs. Hobson said the society wanted as many children as possible to see the nature film. "The school auditorium will hold 600 persons and we would like to see it filled," she said.

BURLINGTON, Vt. (UP) — When a Shelburne man was convicted of drunkenness on his birthday, State's Attorney Lawrence H. Desha, told the court: "Along with his birthday cake, he got lit up."
